STRANGE MYSTERY OF REC[illegible] STORM FINAL[illegible] SOLVED

Diver Makes [illegible]ination and Discovers [illegible] of the Capsized Vessel.

WAS THE CHARLES S. PRICE OF CLEVELAND

Carried Crew of Twenty-eight and All Are Lost—No Evidence of Another Submerged Ship.

Port Huron, Mich., Nov. 15—One of the strangest mysteries in connection with the destruction of vessels and men on the Great Lakes by last Sunday's storm, was solved today when William Baker, a diver, identified the overturned vessel in Lake Huron, 13 miles northeast of this port, as the Charles S. Price, of Cleveland. The Price, a steamer 504 feet long, has been lying in the lake ever since the storm with only a few feet of the bottom of her bow above water. She is said to have carried a crew of 28. All of them must have been lost.

Until today all efforts to identify the derelict has been in vain and there were many conjectures as to her name. The general opinion, however, was that she would be found to be either The Price or The Regina.

It is still thought that the wrecking of The Price and The Regina must have been in the same locality. The diver, however, found no evidence of another submerged vessel besides The Price. The opinion that the two steamers went down near each other is borne by the fact that a body of The Price was found wearing a Regina lifebelt.

The belt was found adrift after the sailor had jumped from his sinking boat.

Ship owners and anxious relatives of the lost sailors of the eight boats which went down in Lake Huron during the storm, today began another search for the frozen bodies which are being tossed up almost hourly along the Canadian shore.

The establishment of the identity of the "mystery ship" makes it certain that the boats claimed by the big blow on Lake Huron were the John A. McGean, Charles S. Price, James Carruthers, Regina, Wexford, Argus, Hydrus, and isaac M. Scott, involving a death loss of approximately 300.

Ten More Bodies.

Kincardine, Ont., Nov. 15.—Ten more bodies were washed ashore tonight near the village of Amberlay and have been taken to Ripley. Of these two have been identified as Captain W. H. Wright and Chief Engineer O'Dell of the Jas. Carruthers, both of Toronto. So far 31 bodies have been washed ashore north of Grand Bend. The bodies of Captain Wright and ODell will be shipped to Toronto for burial.

MUNICIPAL LEAGUE.

Toronto, Nov. 15—The first steps toward the organization of a Canadian National Municipal League were taken yesterday by a Canadian delegation in attendance at the meeting of National Municipal League of America, at the city hall. It was decided the time had come for the formation of a society to be composed of civic experts and representatives of unofficial municipal associations and to undertake the study of civic problems in Canada. They therefore appointed a committee to do the preliminary work.

W. Sanford Evans, president of the Canadian Housing and Town Planning association, Winnipeg, was appointed a member of the committee.

Yeggmen and Sneak Thieves Haunt Streets of Edmonton

Carnival of Crime Prevails in Various Quarters of Town——Joe Rigler Robbed of $95—Two Women Attacked, Purse Taken—Police Kept Busy on Trail of Criminals.

In spite of all assurances to the contrary Edmonton is getting more like New York every day.

Yeggmen, thugs and sneak-thieves had a little carnival of their own last night in the silence and darkness of the city streets. They made very little discrimination in choosing the scenes of their depredations. From the dingy and questionable purlieus of the C.N.R. station to the aristocratic quiet of Victoria avenue reports came in of successful hold-ups.

After a short glance down the gleaming barrel of a bull-dog revolver, one Joe. Rigler, apparently a half breed, decided it was probably best to part with the $95 he had in his jeans and not bother discussing the point with the villainous looking possessor of the gun, especially as its steely snout was within an inch of his face. With cool deliberation Rigler was robbed of all he possessed in the world. Half dead with fright he managed to reach the friendly glare of the electric lights on First street and soon told his tale to a policeman. No information has yet been received of the apprehension of the robber although it is believed the police are hot on the trail.

Crime is no respecter of districts or of persons. Just about an hour previous to Rigler's hold-up, Mrs. W. C. Sterling and Mrs. J. H. Brittain, both of the Arlington apartments were walking along Victoria avenue between Fourth and Fifth streets. No other pedestrian was visible with the exception of a young man coming towards them apparently a little the worse for liquor. When he met the two women he gave a lurch towards them and before Mrs. Stirling had recovered from her surprise at the man's action she felt a violent wrench at her silver purse. The thief was successful in his design and made a dash for a nearby lane down which he dashed at full speed, all traces of drunkenness having suddenly disappeared. The two women ran after their assailant as fast as they could but gave up the chase when the thief had disapepared through a vacant lot.

The pecuniary loss was not more than $5, but Mrs. Sterling especiall regrets the loss of the silver purse which was a valuable one and a wedding present.

NATIONAL UNION FEDERAL EMPLOYES BEING CONSIDERED

Federation of Labor Takes Steps Looking to Formation—Government Not Opposed.

Seattle, Nov. 15—The delegates to the American Federation of Labor held a brief session yesterday morning, and spent the forenoon in an excursion to the Puget Sound navy yard at Brenerton. There they saw the Pacific reserve fleet, ready for duty on a few hours' notice.

A meeting was held last night to consider the formation, of a national union of federal employees, taking in all employees of the post office, immigration and customs service, and in general, clerks and employees under civil service rules who are not embraced by the mechanical unions.

There is a general understanding among federation delegates that the national administration is not opposed to the formation of the proposed union.

Washington, Nov. 15—President Wilson last night sent word to Judge W. Lee Chambers, commissioner of mediation and conciliation, now in New York, to get in touch with the strike situation on the Southern Pacific lines as quickly as possible.

Earlier in the day the president had called to the attention of assistant commissioner Hanger, of the board of mediation and conciliation, serious embarrassment to the traffic resulting from the strike of the trainmen and enginemen, and urged him to go to New Orleans to arrange for mediation if possible.

GUILTY OF INDISCIPLINE

Paris, Nov. 15.—General Faurie was adjudged guilty today of an act of indiscipline in writing letters after the close of the fall manoeuvres on the subject of military exercises in which he had participated. He was placed on the retired list.

INDIAN TRAPPER SHOT.

North Bay, Ont., Nov. 15—Archie Stephens, an Indian trapper, was accidentally shot and killed by a bullet from his own rifle Wednesday when hunting on the upper Sturgeon river. Evidently, the rifle had jammed, and in making an adjustment he had accidentally discharged it.

POWER PLANT'S OUTPUT DURING OCTOBER LARGE

Aggregated Two Million Kilowat Hours, Making Record in History of Station

The monthly statement of Superintendent Parsons for October contains the fact that over 2,000,000 k.w.h. was the output of the plant, a new high record never before equalled in the history of the station. Of this big output the gas engine alone produced 386,980 k.w.h. also a new high record for this machine.

The plant was operated successfully in all its branches with practically no interruptions. During the month the mud from the bottom of the sedimentation basin was cleared out, but even this was done without inconveniencing the citizens.

The net result of the operations of the power house for the month of October is that $9,427.31 is available for obsolescent fund. The new rates to power users is effective this month and therefore the monthly surplus will probably be reduced. However, the superintendent expects to sell power at the flat rate of two cents, instead of 2.4 to the street railway and 3.4 to the electric light department as at present, and still show a substantial profit on the operation of the plant.

A comparison of the output on the plant for the months of September and October is as follows.

	September.	October.
Power to electric light dept. ...	k.w.h. 993,400	k.w.h. 1,177,300
Power to street railway	604,400	647,657
Water to Water Works Dept..	(imp. gals.) 136,849,000	143,142,815

BURNED AT SEA.

New York, Nov. 15—Meagre wireless despatches received today told of the rescue at sea of 103 passengers from the burning Spanish steamship Balmes, by the Cunard liner Hannonia. Though fire was still raging today, the Balmes' crew of 55 were presumably sticking by their vessel, which convoyed by the Hannonia, was headed for Bermuda, which should be reached some time Monday.

STEAMER LOST WITH CREW OF FORTY-TWO

Cape Breton Collier Bridgeport With 1000 Tons of Coal Sunk.

Montreal, Nov. 15—The steam collier Bridgeport, sailing from Sydney, Cape Breton, with a crew of 42 and a cargo of 1,000 tons of coal, has been lost, and probably all aboard have perished, according to an official announcement made today by the Dominion Coal Co., which chartered the vessel.

REFUGEES FROM MEXICO ARRIVE NEW YORK CITY

With Very Little Money, Few Personal Effects, 22 Reach Gotham.

New York, Nov. 15—With very little money, few personal effects, but bearing many complaints concerning conditions in Mexico that forced them to leave that country, 22 refugees arrived here yesterday from Vera Cruz aboard the steamship Mexico. In the party were 14 Americans, nine men, four women and one child, all from mining camps near Torreon.

Metreo De La Garza, who was a passenger on the Mexico, denied reports that he was formerly a confidential agent of provisional president Huerta, but admitted that he was a relative of the present minister of war. De La Graza further denied that his mission to this country was in the interests of the Huerta government.

Charles P. Thompson, a mining engineer, formerly of Boston, who was employed by a British syndicate, told of his escape from the Torreon district, which he said was infested with rebels. The American refugees, he said, made the trip from Torreon to Vera Cruz in wagons, on trains, and on foot, when rebel activities forced them to quit more rapid means of transit.

Mr. Thompson said the conditions were worse than were generally known here, because of the depreciation of the Mexican money, and the consequent lack of supplies and loss of adequate protection from bandit bands.

CAMPAIGN FOR NEW SYSTEM OF CIVIC GOVERNMENT

Two Meetings Addressed Yesterday by Secretary Roche of the League.

Upon invitation of the Western Club, an organization of 150 members, with headquarters on McCauley street, Secretary Roche, of the Civic Government League of Edmonton, delivered an address on elective commission government, embodying the initiative, referendum and recall, last evening. The Western Club is an organization of old countrymen formed for the purpose of study in connection with the current question of city, province, nation and empire government, and they are advised at all times on all subjects of public interest.

At the close of the meeting this club enthusiastically endorsed Elective Commission Government and passed a vote of thanks to the speaker of the evening.

PASSENGER TRAIN IS FIRED UPON BY COPPER STRIKERS

Ninety-six More Arrests for Violation of Injunction Against Picketing.

Calumet, Mich., Nov. 14.—A passenger train on the Duluth South Shore and Atlantic railway was fired on today when it reached Hancock, where a large number of the copper strikers were awaiting the arrival of non-union men for the mines. One shot crashed through a window of the smoking car, just missing one of a party of ten men who had been mistaken for strike breakers.

Ninety-six additional arrests on the charge of violation of the injunction against picketing were made at the Superior mine. Noisy parades were held at Quincy and South Range, where the coach loads of imported men arrived for the copper range mines.

The first notable break in the ranks of the western federation miners at South Range occurred when 49 Lithunians returned to work at the Champion mine.

LARGEST CROWD OF RATEPAYERS TO PAY TAXES

Exceeds Any Similar Gathering This Year—South Siders Throng Corridors.

A long line of ratepayers waited at the office of the city assessor this morning to get in their sheckels at a reduction of 10 per cent. The crowd was the largest yet recorded this year, due likely to the fact that the ratepayers had the idea that the office would close at one o'clock as usual and that they would not have opportunity to pocket five per cent of their tax bills.

The south side office is much smaller and has not the facilities for handling a crowd that the head office in the civic building now commands. On this account the tax-gatherers over there had a terrible time with the surging masses of people who thronged the corridors this morning with either wads of the long green or certified checks attached to their tax bills.

City Assessor Walker stated at noon today that he had no notification of an extension of time for the payment of taxes at the present rate of discount but he admitted that such an arrangement was being made or at least discussed. Mr. Walker is of the opinion that it would not be fair to those citizens who have rushed in their taxes in accordance with the present regulations, should the city now grant an extension of time to the tardy ones.

The total amount of taxes paid on Friday could not be ascertained today as the checks were laid aside and not totalled up. The cash receipts amounted to over $150,000.

FERDINAND WILL ABDICATE.

London, Nov. 15—The Daily Telegraph asserts that, despite official denials, King Ferdinand of Bulgaria, will abdicate within a few months, perhaps a few weeks. It says his downfall is due to the king having offended Russia by seeking Austria's assistance for Servia.

Huerta Declares He Must Maintain Dignified Pose

Action of Carranza in Repudiating Alliance With United States Renders This Stand Necessary—Renewal of Negotiations is Extremely Doubtful.

Mexico City, Nov. 15.—In view of Venastinao Carranza's repudiation of any form of mediation or alliance with the United States, Provisional President Huerta can do no less than join him in an expression of patriotic sentiment and maintain unaltered his dignified attitude towards Washington.

This statement was made at the National Palace today.

This declaration appears to cast extreme doubt of any renewal of negotiations between Mexico and the United States, according to the view taken by well informed persons here. They declare that it tends to substantiate the belief that no hope is left of an amicable adjustment.

Washington, Nov. 15.—Instructions were sent to Charge O'Shaughnessy last night indicating to him the extent to which the United States government will go in re-opening the negotiations with those counsellors of Provisional President Huerta who earlier in the day sought to renew the parleys.

The anxiety shown by the officials close to General Huerta was regarded as a favorable sign by high officials here who expected some definite assurances would be forthcoming quickly upon compliance with the American demand that the new congress be not convened and that Huerta be eliminated.

Position of United States.

The position of the American government, however, is that until something definite is promised by the Huerta officials the resumption of the negociations would be useless.

This was the status of the Mexican situation late tonight. Efforts by counsellors of Huerta to induce John Lind, at Vera Cruz, to re-open the entire subject had not been successful to a late hour, it was reported here, Mr. Lind refusing to go back to Mexico City until some definite promises were forthcoming from General Huerta.

Chairman Macon, of the foreign relations committee, in discussing despatches from Mexico City stating that Huerta's counsellors were seeking to re-open the negotiations declared that the only condition on which that could be done would be the complete surrender of Huerta.

Elemination Inevitable.

Though administration officials continued to be optimistic over the support they were getting from the great powers, they did not discuss the situation in Mexico City beyond indicating again that Huerta's elimination was inevitable.

Despatches from Constitutionalist headquarters at Nogales, Sonora, announcing General Carranza's absolute refusal to accept any "transactions" with foreign nations, looking to the regulation of Mexico's internal affairs was the comment by government officials here. It was suggested in some quarters that General Carranza's declaration was made in order to show the Mexicans that he was not entering into an alliance with the United States, a situation that might be made an issue, it is realized here, and develop discord among his followers.

Has Never Offered Mediation.

The Washington administration howeven through Wm. Bayard Hale, it is said on the authority of persons in President Wilson's confidence, has never offered mediation or any interference with a view toward regulating internal affairs in Mexico. The sole purpose of the parleys through Mr. Hale it is pointed out, has been to obtain assurances of protection for all foreign interests should the embargo on arms be lifted.

Mexico City, Nov. 15—President Huerta's attitude as to the demands of the United States that he make way for a new government, is that of one

Cuidad Juarez Captured by the Constitutionalists

Generals Hancho Villa and MacLevio Herrara Seize Northern Port of Entry to Mexico This Morning—Losses Small on Both Sides—Three Americans Killed.

El Paso, Texas, Nov. 15.—Cuidad Juarez, the most important northern port of entry in Mexico, was captured by constitutionalists, under General Hancho Villa and General MacLevio Herrera, early this morning with small loss on either side. The occupation of Juarez by rebels began at 2:30 o'clock, after the men under Villa and Herrera had reached the town in trains thought to be carrying federal soldiers to the garrison. The rebels detrained undiscovered, placed their artillery and had everything in readiness to battle before the word was given to fire on the federal garrison. At the first volley the astounded government troops were assembled, returned the fire and engaged in a battle which lasted for two hours.

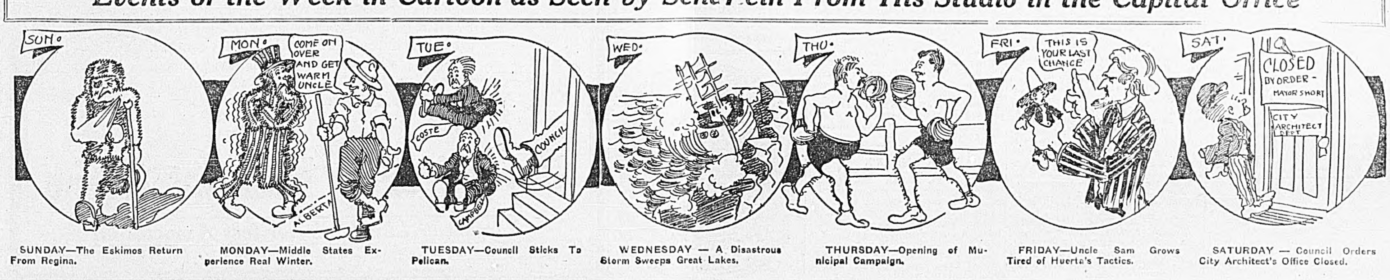

Bullets fell thick in El Paso, and all the residents were awakened by the sound of heavy artillery firing. Americans were kept from the danger zone by the detachment of the United States 15th cavalry on patrol duty here under Major R. E. L. Mitchell, and so far as is known early today no Americans were wounded, though houses and buildings were targets for many shots.

The formal surrender of the city to the constitutionalists was at 5 o'clock, when the federal commander threw himself and his soldiers on the mercy of the victorious rebels. At once bands began playing on the streets and the town rang with "Vivas" for the conquerors.

Three Americans Killed.

El Paso, Texas, Nov. 15.—Three Americans were killed in Juarez during the fighting incident in the capture of the city by rebels early today. At 7 o'clock fighting was resumed near the Juarez race track. General Francesci Castro, commander of the federal garrison, was missing. He was not among the killed or wounded, and it was believed he had escaped from the city.

LITTLE TROUBLE IN SUPPRESSING REVOLUTIONARIES

Portuguese Government Easily Baulks Feeble Efforts to Overthrow It.

POSSESSES COMPLETE SYSTEM OF ESPIONAGE

Leaders Warned of Government's Knowledge of Secrets and Flee—Followers Without Chiefs.

London, Nov. 15.—An English correspondent in Lisbon, writing to a London paper, observes that the Portuguese government, with all its efforts, has not much difficulty in suppressing the feeble revolutionary efforts—whether syndicalist, radical or monarchial—made to overthrow it. Speaking of the latest fiasco by the royalists, he says: "It is not to be wondered at that the government, possessing as it does a most complete system of espionage, should know practically every detail connected with the proposed movement, when every Tom, Dick and Harry confessing sympathy towards it was kept well informed as to its details, and when, on the eve of occurrences, it was a matter of common knowledge that something was going to happen. What really happened is not difficult to deduce. At their final meeting the royalist leaders were warned that the government was in possession of their secrets and had issued orders for their arrest.

"They thereupon decided that a prudent course was the best one to follow in the circumstances, and vanished. The time being too short to allow of all the persons concerned to be warned, some poor fellows, belonging to the most humble section, came out and to their dismay found themselves without leaders, and with a very small contingent of those sworn to the cause. The leaders, of course, in absenting themselves as they did, were only following precedent, for of all the prominent personages connected with the revolution of 1910 who are still in evidence, only one, Senor Machado Santos, was seen during the actual fighting." The writer adds that the disturbance has rather helped the government by diverting attention from grievances against it.

PROTESTANTS ASK FOR OPEN CHURCHES IN SPAIN

Government Not Likely to Do Much, But Opposition Favors Request.

Madrid, Nov. 15—A delegation of Protestants, headed by missionaries, called today on Premier Dato, to ask permission to open their churches to the public, and advertise them, as is done in all other countries. At the present time, while Protestants are allowed to hold meetings and establish their churches, these are kept practically in privacy, as the constitution does not guarantee the freedom of the religion. Senor Dato answered that the government is ready to do its utmost in favor of the Protestants within the limits of the constitution.

Ex-Premier Romanonez had promised to include religious freedom in the next parliamentary program, but the present cabinet, being conservative, will probably oppose any such measure.

CANADIAN ORDNANCE CORPS TO INCLUDE BOYS

Lads Fifteen Years Old Will Be Granted Fifth Rate of Pay.

Ottawa, Nov. 15.—Militia orders announce that a limited number of boys will be included in the estimate of the Canadian ordnance corps, mainly being maintained as clerks or armorers.

Boys may be granted the fifth rate of corps pay when 15 years old if they are considered by their commanders to be qualified and worth the remuneration.

They may be recommended for the fourth rate when 16 years old if qualified to do the duty of a fifth grade clerk or fourth class artificer.

The probability is that quite a number of the men will be tried at New Westminster where the assizes open shortly.

HELD UP A TRAIN

San Francisco, Nov. 15.—A highwayman held up a Southern Pacific passenger train from Chicago near Richmond, across the bay from San Francisco tonight and robbed men and women in the sleeping cars of their jewelry and about $1000.

More Railroads for Alberta Five Additional Contemplated

Canadian Alberta Co. to Build Northwesterly From Blairmore —C. and E. Will Go West From Macleod and C.P.R. Southeasterly From Swift Current.

Ottawa, Nov. 14.—Several proposed railway projects which will come before parliament for consideration at its next session will be given notice of in Saturday's Gazette. The Canadian Alberta company will apply for incorporation with power to construct a line of railway about one mile west of Blairmore, Alta., thence in a northerly and westerly direction through townships eight and nine, range four, west of the fifth meridian, Alberta 14 miles, more or less, to a point about the centre of section 20 in said township 9.

The Calgary and Edmonton Railway company will apply for an act authorizing it to construct the following lines of railway:

From a point on its McLeod branch in townships 19, 20 and 21, in a westerly direction to a point on the south branch of Sheep Creek in range 4, west 5th meridian, Alberta. From a point on the line above proposed to a point on the north branch of Sheep Creek; also a line to a point on Trap Creek.

The C.P.R. company will apply for an act authorizing it to construct the following lines of railway: From a point on its Swift Current southeasterly branch in township 14 or 15 in a southwesterly direction to a point in township 8 or 9, range 17 or 18. From a point on the proposed Swift Current southeasterly branch in township 12 in a southerly and southwesterly direction to a point in township 9, range 16 or 17.

The Esquimalt and Nanaimo railway will apply for an act extending the period for the construction of its authorized lines.

TWO MONARCHS' RELATIONS HAVE BECOME STRAINED

Francis Joseph is Peeved at William Over Emigrations to America.

GERMAN AUTHORITIES AWARE OF THE EXODUS

Should Have Notified Ally of the Vast Cargoes of Departing Galicians and Hungarians.

Berlin, Nov. 15.—Reports are in circulation in well-informed quarters that personal relations between the Kaiser and Emperor Francis Joseph of Austria have become strained, because of the fact that the bulk of the Austro-Hungarian emigrants concerned in the Canadian Pacific disclosures in Vienna crossed the ocean in German steamers.

The Austrian courts hold that the German authorities must have been cognizant of the origin of the vast cargoes of Galicians and Hungarians shipped from Hamburg and Bremen and that it was incumbent on its loyal ally in Berlin not to let the Vienna government remain in ignorance of the methods whereby the dual monarchy was being sapped systematically of its military life blood.

Statements now appearing in Vienna allege that among the mass of incriminating correspondence implicating in connection with the disclosures much was found that implicated the German lines, and a well nown emigration agency at Hamburg.

Inquiries instituted at Brenen and Hamburg have elicited the information that thousands of Austro-Hungarian emigrants leave the German as well as the Belgian and Dutch press. The steamship lines say they do not concern themselves with the question whether the emigrants include deserters or not. That, they contend, is the business of the state authorities. If deserters succeed in leaving the country they can only do so with the aid of forged military papers.

UNCONSCIOUS FROM FUMES OF UNDERGROUND TUNNEL

Spanish Engineer and Firemen Discovered in Serious Condition on Running Train.

Corumn, Spain, Nov. 15—A passenger train, while going through the two miles long Ourat tunnel yesterday, slowed up, finally came to a stop and then began running backwards. The occurrence being unusual, the brakeman of the train hurriedly made an investigation and found that the engineer and the fireman had been rendered unconscious by the fumes which had accumulated in the underground passage. Many of the passengers also were unconscious.

Realizing the danger of the situation, the brakeman took the engineer's place and ran the train to the end of the tunnel. There medical assistance was summoned and the fumes which had accumulated in the underground passage. Many of the passengers also were unconscious.

Realizing the danger of the situation, the brakeman took the engineer's place and ran the train to the end of the tunnel. There medical assistance was summoned and the passengers revived. The engineer and fireman, however, are still unconscious.

BOB ROGERS AT HALIFAX ANNOUNCES BIG DRY DOCK

Largest in British Empire Will Be Constructed at Nova Scotia Capital.

Halifax, N.S., Nov. 15.—Hon. Robert Rogers, minister of public works, was given a reception by the conservative party in the Masonic hall last night. During the evening the minister announced that the largest dry dock in the British empire would be built on the Halifax harbor, probably on the Dartmouth side. He also stated that he would give his support to the construction of a bridge across the narrows, connecting Halifax and Dartmouth.

Hon. Mr. Hazen, who was expected at the meeting, was not present. He did not come to the city.

FOUND GUILTY OF MURDER

Chicago, Nov. 15.—Henry Spencer, confessed slayer of Mrs. Mildred Allen Mexroat, dancing teacher, was tonight found guilty of murder by a jury at Wheaton, a suburb.

CRITICAL TIME IN INDIAN FINANCES NOT SO SERIOUS

Twenty-five Native Brokers Fail But Business Becoming Normal.

LESS ANXIETY OVER THE ENGLISH MANAGED BANKS

Crisis Reduces Bombay's Silver Stocks to Minimum—Will Now Increase.

London, Nov. 15—The latest news on the financial situation in India is reassuring as Bombay's critical midmonth settlement has passed with less difficulty than expected.

There was a very heavy turn over of money at the settlement. Twenty-five native brokers failed, but business is becoming more normal.

London bankers refuse definitely to express any view at all over the trouble, but admit less anxiety is warranted over the English-managed banks as at no time was there any difficulty with these as proved by the steadiness of the exchanges and of the Anglo Indian banking companies shares throughout the crisis.

A well-known banker says it would have been invidious, perhaps impossible, to have checked the native banking business earlier, this being part of the Swadeshi national movement, but the government is expected now to soon act with strict supervisory banking legislation to protect the natives, as they formerly had to be protected from exploitation by worthless competitions.

In this step the government will be sure of general approval. The Indian currency situation is quite healthy since the holidays.

The Indian silver demands have increased, the daily off-take from the Bombay market having risen from 55 to 85 bars per day.

The crisis has reduced Bombay's silver stocks to a minimum. This is now likely to increase The Indian government contemplates standardizing Indian weights and measures which would greatly help the internal trade. The crop news from the united provinces is much better.

JAPAN ASSERTING PREROGATIVE AS A GREAT POWER

Sending Armed Cruiser to Mexico Marks New Policy of Nation.

Tokio, Nov. 15—There is a growing conviction here that the despatch of the Japanese armored cruiser Izumo to Mexican waters means the inauguration of new policies by the Japanese empire, namely, the affirmation of Japan's prerogatives as one of the great powers to participate in questions involving the powers, whether in the east or the west. The sending of the cruiser to Mexico is pleasing to those Japanese who pretend that Japan is backward in claiming her rightful place in the council of the nations.

The importance that Japan attaches to the despatch of a cruiser is evinced by the official conferences concerning the plan. Baron Makino, the foreign minister, went to the Nagoia manoeuvres to submit the proposal to the emperor and afterwards his majesty received Captain Moriyma and Vice-Captain Macuda, of the Izumo, in farewell address.

FUR FARMING.

Ottawa, Nov. 14.—An evidence of the development of the fur farming industry in eastern Canada is afforded by the incorporation of the Gaspe Fur Farmers, limited, with a capital of a quarter million dollars. The company proposes to carry on a general ranching business for the breeding of foxes and other fur bearing animals.

CAR ON FIRE ON SOUTH SIDE HIGH LEVEL BRIDGE

Fire Brigade Summoned After Crew's Efforts Prove to Be Unavailing.

DANGEROUS SITUATION IS NARROWLY AVERTED

Had Fire Been Discovered While Car Was Yet on Bridge Panic Would Have Ensued.

Filled to capacity by a crowd who were returning to their south side homes after the days work, car No. 46 had just reached the southern end of the high level bridge when a woman in the front of the car noticed a light wisp of smoke curling from under her seat. The smoke increased and with it the alarm of those in the immediate vicinity. The car was soon filled with thick and suffocating fumes. A rush was made for both exits and but for the fact that the car had reached term firms before the smoke was noticed a panic with perhaps fatal consequences would most certainly have ensued.

In an incredibly short space of time the smoking car was emptied of its passengers who stood around and watched the smoke gradually develop into flame. In spite of the best efforts of the crew to extinguish the fire it was soon given up as a hopeless job and an alarm was sent in. The south side brigade was on the spot in seven minutes and were soon playing a strong stream of water on the burning truck. It was found after the flames had been subdued that the cause of the trouble had been the igniting of a short coil in the forward truck.

The fire was more spectacular than dangerous and very little damage was done beyond putting the car out of commission for a few days and ruffling the tempers of a few hundred hungry south siders who sat in the long string of cars held up out on the bridge impatiently thinking of the dinner that might be cold when they arrived. The blockage lasted slightly over an hour.

TAXES WILL BE RECEIVED UNTIL 5 O'CLOCK TODAY

Special Arrangements for a Further Extension of One Week Being Made.

Arrangements are being made at the city hall for the extension of the time allowed citizens for the payment of taxes at a 10 per cent. discount. According to the terms of the bylaw, after noon today ratepayers will only be allowed five per cent. off up until December 15th, from which date to the end of the year the taxes will be payable at par.

City Assessor Walker announced this morning that the office would remain open today until 5 o'clock, and all taxes paid in prior to that hour will get the benefit of the 10 per cent.

The mayor is also arranging today with the city solicitor for an amendment to the bylaw so that the time for paying taxes may be extended for a week, and the citizens allowed the 10 per cent. off. This recommendation, it is understood, will be presented to the council on Tuesday evening, when the mayor will ask the council to approve it, and so instruct the assessor.

TONIGHT'S ATTRACTIONS.

NUMBER 23 THE PROPRIETARY

TYPHOID FEVER IS ON DECLINE IN EDMONTON

Dr. Whitelaw Makes His Monthly Statement of Health Conditions in City.

OCTOBER TYPHOIDS 26 LESS THAN SEPTEMBER'S

Communicable Diseases Reported During Month Aggregate 93—Twenty-five Come From Outside City.

The monthly report for October just issued by Dr. Whitelaw, the medical officer of health, indicates that typhoid fever is on the decline in the city. During September 64 cases were reported, while in October this number has been reduced to 38. It is noted in the report that out of 23 city cases one is reported west of First street, which shows that the west end of the city is practically free from this disease.

The communicable diseases reported for the month reach a total of 93, and of this number 58 are city cases and 25 have come from points outside of the municipality. Diphtheria is second on the list with 16 cases reported for the month. The report discourages the necessity for citizens using tap filters no often recommended by agents. The city water is not dangerous and with the completion of the filtration building the residents will be sure to get pure water all winter.

The report deals with the fact that an outbreak of cholera among hogs has been given much attention by the city food inspector and the government officials, many animals having to be destroyed.

Dr. Whitelaw's Report.

I beg to report, says Dr. Whitelaw, the work of the health department for the month ending October 31st, 1913:

Isolation Hospital.

Cases admitted—
Erysipelas	2
Scarlet fever	7
Diphtheria	11
Measles	2
Tuberculosis	5
Pleurisy	1
Typhoid	1
Typhoid and erysipelas	1
Total	31
Cases discharged cured	22
Cases discharged improved (tuberculosis)	2

The number of deaths were, three from tuberculosis, and one each from diphtheria, scarlet fever and typhoid.

It will now be advisable to discontinue accepting typhoid fever cases, as the other hospitals should now be in a position to receive and care for the limited number of cases occurring.

Communicable Diseases.

The total number of cases reported was 92, of which 58 were city cases and 25 from outside the municipality.

The list is as follows—

	Cases.	Imp. Cases.
Diphtheria	12	4
Scarlet fever	8	0
Tuberculosis	0	5
Erysipelas	5	0
Typhoid fever	23	15
Chickenpox	3	0
Measles	6	1
Mumps	1	0
Totals	58	25

Diphtheria and typhoid fever only, call for special comment. Diphtheria has been slightly more prevalent than usual, and special attention has been given, in co-operation with the medical school inspector, in preventing its spread among school children. Antitoxin supplied free by the department in many cases has been freely used with good effect.

Typhoid is Decreasing.

The situation as regards typhoid fever is much more satisfactory than for October 1912, when 64 city cases were reported.

For October 1913, 23 cases are reported. Of these, only one is west of First street, indicating that the west end of our city is almost exempt this year. Of the 23 cases, five only are from premises fully modern, four are supplied with water by barrel or tap, twelve used well water, and two spring water. This again demonstrates the danger of using spring or well water within the city limits. An analysis of these suspected water supplies is being made, and warnings have been issued regarding their use. Contact infection is no doubt responsible for some of these cases. As regards the milk supply, nine used milk from private cows, three used no milk, and one condensed milk. The remainder, or ten, were supplied by the Edmonton City and Woodland dairies. This distribution suggests that it is unlikely that any cases contracted the infection through milk, except in one case where a typhoid patient may have infected another through the milk of a private cow.

The number of cases, or 15, from outside the city, is fortunately declining, and probably will continue to grow less as winter comes on, flies no longer being a possible source of infection.

City Water is Pure.

The above evidence regarding the city cases of typhoid fever should be reassuring to those who have doubts about the safety and purity of our public water supply. The bacteriological reports indicate that the processes of filtration and chlorination of the city water, are now being carried out continually in a very efficient manner, removing all possible danger of contracting disease from the use of the ordinary tap water. Advertising agents who desire to sell tap filters and other devices naturally endeavor to create doubt and apprehension in the minds of our citizens regarding our public water supply. With the improvements lately effected, especially the covering of the filter plant and the early completion of the pipe line across the river which will allow of a continuous supply of filtered water both winter and summer to both sides of the river, the citizens may safely use tap water without the addition of any filtration device so frequently recommended by agents. These tap filters may be a benefit in preventing splash but the public should not be induced into buying them on the mistaken assumption that the river water is dangerous, as so frequently represented by agents and picture show advertisements.

During the month, 113 school children have been vaccinated, almost all of whom have been ascertained to be successful.

Eight applicants for police and fire departments have been examined during the month.

Hog Cholera Prevalent.

During the month the tuberculin test has been applied to 90 cows of which seven showed evidences of tuberculosis, and three were suspicious. It is altogether likely that this test will be applied to all cows in the city within a short time in accordance with the provincial health act. In order to prevent the possibility of tuberculosis from milk, it is necessary that all herds should either be tuberculin tested or that the milk should be properly pasteurized. The public would do well to avoid the use of milk which has not been either pasteurized or been derived from cows which have been tuberculin tested.

An outbreak of cholera among hogs has been given a great deal of attention by the city food inspector and government officials, with the result that many hogs have been destroyed, and every care has been taken to prevent the placing of diseased meat on our markets. Further information in regard to this matter will be found in the food inspector's report.

ORTIE WILL BE BARRED

Ottawa, Nov. 15.—Officials of the immigration department say Ortie E. McManigal, whose testimony convicted the McNamara brothers of dynamiting the Los Angeles Times building will not be allowed to enter Canada. A Montreal despatch says McManigal is on his way to Montreal with the object of sailing for Europe from that port.

A Physical Wreck

Suffered Tortures from Nervousness.

Miss Marguerite Lees, 91 Robert St., Hamilton, Ont., writes: "I was a wreck, reduced in body, and despondent. I suffered tortures from nervousness, and was totally unfitted for work. A friend recommended Hood's Sarsaparilla. I commenced taking it and by the time the second bottle was consumed I knew that I was mending. Gradually I grew well. I have used Hood's since. I would not be without it on any account, and do most enthusiastically endorse every word in its favor."

TRAIN DERAILED AND BRAKEMAN LOSES LIFE

Chattanooga, Tenn., Nov. 15.—The Royal Palm, the new Queen and Crescent Limited train, running between Chicago and Jacksonville, Fla., was wrecked near Annadel, Tenn, late last night.

Fireman Oscar Davis, of Pine Knot, Ky., was killed when the engine rolled down an embankment. All the coaches except the observation car were derailed and tipped up, but the fact that the cars were of steel construction probably saved many persons from death or injury.

The accident was attributed to a broken rail.

TAKING A CHANCE WITH THE ELEMENTS.

With danger signals flying at every station to warn them of the approach of a howling blizzard, lake steamers laden to the plimsoll mark leave port and plunge into an early winter storm, gambling the ships and the lives of the sailormen against the elements lest a precious day or two at the close of the season of navigation be lost and wheat be found lying at the head of the lakes rather than in Europe when the ice forms in the harbors and the steamers tie up for the season.

No moral appears that is easy to recognize. The danger of lake navigation is never absent and seldom small. Steamers of a class supposed to be impervious to anything short of a hurricane ply the lakes in great numbers. The lake traffic has reached such proportions that the Soo canal now handles an enormously greater tonnage than the Suez. A steamer passes Sarnia, on the St. Clair, every seven minutes. At this season of the year a million bushels a day leave lake-head for lower points. The pressure behind is tremendous. The loss of a day runs into staggering figures. With the confidence born of the experience that their magnificent steamers have faced and jammed through the storm many a time before, the owners take a chance. The loss of three hundred lives and millions of dollars' worth of property in the storm of Saturday and Sunday prove that this time the chance was a bad one; that the storm was one of such severity as only occurs once in years.

But the lake captains will continue to take the same chance and will continue to escape, as they have been doing, probably for years, until the next great storm, when history will repeat itself and the penalty be paid again.

THE DISPROOF OF THE ANTI-RECIPROCITY CRY.

The Consumers' League, a Calgary organization of householders whose object is to reduce the cost of living, declares that Calgary is threatened with a beef famine. According to the statement of the organization, the agents of the packing-houses are scouring the country contracting for beef a year or two years ahead, and are making payments in advance upon the contracts, with the probable result that in the very near future the packing-houses will have cornered for export all the beef in the country. The consumers' league is attempting to meet the situation by having the Calgary market thrown open to anyone who has food products to sell, hoping thereby to popularize it with the farmers.

While the Calgary householders are to be sympathized with in the present emergency, the facts which they bring out prove very forcibly, and in a practical manner which anyone can understand, that the pre-election plain of the anti-reciprocity people that the opening of the United States market promised nothing for the Canadian farmer was very wide of the truth.

STUDYING QUESTIONS AT VERY LONG RANGE.

Chairman Drayton of the railway commission, who was sent to the old country for the purpose of investigating trans-Atlantic freight rates, comes back empty-handed, with the declaration that the government can do nothing to regulate ocean freight rates.

Meantime, while this discovery is being made, western freights, as to which there is no manner of doubt of the government's power to regulate, stand just where they were and the case of the western provinces for a reduction of rates is left in abeyance, the grain growers of the west paying freight charges which the railway companies have not the temerity to attempt to defend.

Chairman Drayton going across the ocean to study freight rates is on a par with Minister of Labor Crothers leaving Nanaimo for England to study the labor question.

THE HUMAN TENDENCY TO KICK THE MAN WHO IS DOWN.

The intensely human tendency to take a kick at the man who is down is manifesting itself as a sort of aftermath to the New York elections. From the neighborhood of the wigwam there goes up the cry that Tammany has been ruined by Murphy's bad judgment, and that, therefore, Murphy must abdicate the leadership or be dethroned.

As a matter of fact, judgment did not enter into the circumstances which led up to Tammany's defeat. When Sulzer failed to perform, Murphy was faced with the necessity of eliminating Sulzer or witnessing the decay of Tammany's power. Had he been the character of man to fail to "go through" in such an emergency, then he never would have been the leader of Tammany.

CONSERVATIVES AND SOCIALISTS SHARE READING VICTORY.

While the election of a Unionist in Sir Rufus Isaacs' stead in Reading is advertised by the conservatives in this country as a defeat for the Lloyd George land policy and for home rule, it is worthy of note that it is also being vociferously proclaimed by the socialists in England as an effective disciplining of the government for having failed to listen to their demands for the release of Larkin, the Irish strike leader.

To strengthen their demand that Larkin be released, the socialists nominated a candidate to split the liberal vote, a move on their part which worked out to the end intended, namely, to keep a liberal out of parliament. Had the government acceded to the release of Larkin the result would, in all probability, have been very different.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY PARTY

Manuel, ExKing of the Portuguese, 24 Today

Young Dom Manuel, the ex-king of Portugal, whose matrimonial infelicities have lately been aired in the press, will pass his 24 milestone today. The youthful scion of the House of Braganza—which, by the way, was founded back in 1400 by the illegitimate son of the last of the old line of Portuguese rulers—is now said to have patched up whatever difficulties he may have had with his fish bride, who was Princess Augustine of Hohenzollern. She is alleged to have recovered from the mysterious malady with which she was stricken soon after her marriage to the exiled monarch.

When Manuel was served with a dispossess notice by the Portuguese republicans and ousted from the royal palace in Lisbon three years ago, he immediately began a search for a wealthy wife whose money might enable him to regain his throne. He found the object of his quest in the Hohenzollern princess, after he had been refused by many other young ladies of royal blood. It is a coincidence that Manuel was born on the very day that another Braganza, Dom Pedro II., was deposed from the throne of Brazil. The crowdless king is very popular in London, where he has spent much of his time since he was invited to leave his country for his country's good.

Louis Freeland Post, assistant secretary of the United States department of labor, will celebrate his 64 birthday today, if he has time, which is altogether unlikely. The distinguished disciple of Henry George and preacher of the "single tax" is one of the busiest men in Washington. He formed the habit of industry during his long career as journalist. He was born in Vienna, N. J., and started life as a printer. Later he was admitted to the New York bar, but abandoned the law to become editor of the New York Daily Truth, and later of the Daily Leader, the Henry George campaign organ. For 15 years he has preached the George-Post doctrine of economic salvation in the columns of The Public, of Chicago.

Most young men who have inherited large fortunes devote considerable time and money to sowing wild oats, but William Vincent Astor, the possessor of a hundred million dollars or so, apparently prefers the tame variety. He has commenced the agricultural regenerating of business country, N. Y., the seat of his ancestral estate, by introducing among his neighbors a new and improved variety of oats. Mr. Astor is 29 years old today, and is the son and heir of the late John Jacob Astor, who was lost on the Titanic. The young multi-millionaire is the greatest matrimonial catch in America, but up to date he has shone no inclination toward any favored maiden.

Gerhart Hauptmann, winner of the 1912 Nobel prize for literature, was born 51 years ago today, the son of a Silesian peasant. The distinguished German poet, novelist and dramatist has lost part of his popularity because of the allegation of the Crown Prince that he overpraised Napoleon and gave too little credit to German heroes in his "Feldzipel," which was produced last June at Breslau, but quickly withdrawn. Hauptmann began his literary career at 23, and his first play brought him with the production in Berlin of "Before Dawn." The poet's youth was spent on a farm, a fact which may account for his staunch and brawn.

Grand Duchess Olga, who is the eldest of the four daughters of the Czar and Czarina of Russia, will celebrate her 18 birthday today.

TODAY WE CELEBRATE

Brazil Celebrates 24th Anniversary of Republic

Brazil's chocolate soldiers will parade today through streets decorated in green and yellow, the national colors, in celebration of the 24 anniversary of the overthrow of the empire and the establishment of the republic.

With the exception of Cuba and Panama, giant Brazil is the youngest of American republics. Brazil became free and independent in 1822, but princes of the Portuguese royal house continued to reign as emperors until the 15 of November, 1889, when Dom Pedro II. abdicated after a bloodless revolution. The present president of Brazil, Marshal Hermes da Fonseca, was inaugurated three years ago today, and has just one more year to serve. He is the eighth Brazilian president, the first having been Marshal Deodoro da Fonseca, who resigned soon after his election, and was succeeded by the vice president, Don Floriano Peixoto. Dr. Prudente de Moraes Barros served two years, followed by Dr. Campos Salles, and in 1902 by Dr. Rodriguez Alves. President Affonso died in office in 1909, and Dr. Nilo Peanha was the head of the state until the election of Fonseca.

The Estados Unidos de Brazil is a federative republic of 20 states, one territory and a federal district. Under the constitution each of the states is practically a law unto itself, without interference from the federal government save for its defence and for the execution of federal laws. The president is elected for four years by a direct vote of the people. No president may be elected to succeed himself, and the constitution also prohibits the candidacy of any man who is related by blood or marriage to the president or vice president. The senators, 63 in number, and the members of the house of deputies, 212 in number, are also elected by direct vote. The elections for president and lawmakers will be held on the first of March next, and the campaign has already commenced. The franchise extends to all men over 21, except soldiers, beggars and members of monastic orders.

The railway system of Brazil, almost non-existent at the beginning of the republic, now has about 15,000 miles of road in operation. When it is considered, however, that the area of Brazil is almost as great as that of the United States of America, it will readily be understood that a large part of the country remains undeveloped and without transportation facilities.

While the descendants of Portuguese pioneers are the ruling class in Brazil, the majority of the people have African blood in their veins. There is no racial discrimination, and negroes may be found in the most exclusive clubs and in the inner circles of Rio society. Italians and Germans have also settled in large numbers in the South American republic, and have become an important factor in its civilization.

Rio de Janeiro, the capital, has a population of nearly a million, and is one of the most beautiful and modern cities of the world. Few other cities of its size have so many motor cars, and they come and go in an unending stream on the Avenida Central. As a "great white way" that far-famed thoroughfare eclipses New York's boasted Broadway. Even in the small hours of the morning, when the North American metropolis snatches a brief period of feverish sleep, the Avenida Central pulsates with life and motion. For all its semi-tropical climate and large cosmopolitan population, Rio is wide awake, progressive and up-to-the-minute. The recent visit of Col. Roosevelt has awakened much interest in Brazil among the people north of the equator, and it is likely that many young North Americans will follow the example of Kermit Roosevelt and go south "to grow up with the country."

CORRESPONDENCE

Ald. East and Civic Centre

Editor Capital:

Sir,—With your permission I would like to put right an error in your report of the Empire Auditorium meeting in behalf of Mr. McNamara on Thursday evening. In your report I am represented as having stated that the mayor appointed a council committee which overrode the commissioners' report adverse to the civic centre. As you know, and as we all know, the mayor did not favor, but opposed the civic centre. The council committee referred to was appointed by the council, or rather by those members of the council, and their report was a council report. What I was attempting to make plain was that the council, in this case, stepped outside of its proper scope to set aside the findings of the commissioners and that only by the votes of the ratepayers was the council set right.

Respectfully, JAMES EAST.
Edmonton, November 14, 1913.

The Editor, Capital:

Sir,—We see that the Journal, with its unfailing accuracy is "certain that the men who addressed the labor meeting on Sunday night do not represent the rank and file of the organized workers in Edmonton."

Let us examine this statement, which, if correct, would presume that organized labor is completely and entirely self-seeking and has no sympathy for its brethren now in jail for the crime of protesting against the operators' non-fulfillment of the regulations regarding the safety of the coal mines.

The speaker who first addressed the meeting and referred to the folly of joining an armed force when they had no property to protect was the man appointed by the allied craft unions of this town to represent them at the recent congress at Medicine Hat, and is at this time of writing the secretary of the Edmonton Trades and Labor Council.

Furthermore, every union in town was well represented but two, the exceptions being the lordly bartenders and the Typographical union, who are such faithful servants that they do not feel justified in giving any public expression of sympathy when the men are employees of a transcontinental railroad, whose owners are paying advertisers in most local papers.

And, as regards laboring men owning their own homes, many union men in this town have had bitter cause to regret their ambitions in this line, as, owing to the overcrowded state of the labor market most of them have had to surrender their payments.—Yours, etc.

PRESS COMMITTEE OF THE I.W.W.
November 15, 1913.

THE CHIEF EXECUTIVE OFFICER.

Editor, Edmonton Capital:

Sir,—Much has been said and written about our present city charter and still more might be said and written about that same legislative act. Its paternity has been disputed, acknowledged and denied, and before the last word has been said about it, its presumptive parent will have discerned with the eagle eye of suspicion the lineaments of some other and less worthy sire. Its real progenitor is not far to seek and using the language of veterinary science it may be said to be by Ontario Municipal Act out of Municipal Utilities Ordinance, 1900.

From its ancestry there is nothing to indicate failure, and if the results have not been as successful as was expected the fault lies mainly with its trainers and jockeys. In one respect, however, it possesses a very grave defect, one which was hardly noticeable until this present year of grace, and if it be a reasonable assumption that the people of this city are no longer satisfied with the results which are being achieved in local municipal government, the culminating evidence has been obtained through that defect and through the agency of the very individual who claims to have been the legitimate paternal progenitor of the city charter. The chief defect to which I refer is that which constitutes the mayor the chief executive officer. This is taken from the Ontario municipal act. On the other hand the ordinance of 1900 provides for an administrative board designated commissioners. Now how is it possible for the mayor to properly exercise independent executive powers when a board of commissioners has once been appointed by the council? In this lies the kernel of the trouble experienced this year. The commissioners have been ignored and flouted by the mayor personally and by the council. Two of the commissioners unfortunately yielded to the pressure, and only resisted. The one who exercised with courage his right to differ with the mayor has been subjected to a treatment of which, perhaps, in the interests of the city, the less said the better.

In the event of the proposed new system of civic government failing to obtain the support of the people, I would urge that the present charter be amended so as to entirely remove the mayor (except as a spectator) from the commission board, and further to have the mayor elected by the aldermen from one of their number, instead of a direct election by the people. The reveal of the mayor from the commission would take away the principal need for direct election.

In support of this suggested change I would point to the principal advantage of an appointed commission over committees of the council, which has in continuity of administrative policy. How is this to be obtained if every year or so a new factor is introduced into the administration of all the powers of a chief executive officer directly elected by the people? Never has the folly of such a system been so well demonstrated as during the present year. Ill-considered changes in administrative policy and hasty legislation have resulted in chaos and have brought about a state of despairing resignation on the part of the city officials, which is in the last degree detrimental to the interests of the city.

I need not go over the melancholy sequence of futile suggestions, appointments and instructions for which Mr. Short has been responsible this year, as they have been carried very well advertised to require recapitulation. They simply demonstrate the necessity of removing the mayor from the administration if the present system of government is to have a chance of showing its feasibility. Some of the candidates for the office of alderman are reported to have a desire for such office in order to carry on the present policy, and thus to prevent ill-considered changes. This only goes to prove the correctness of my assertion as of where the main weakness lies. They fear that a change of mayor will mean more changes in policy, which is a reasonable enough cause for fear, as no man in a sound state of mind could possibly continue what now exists, yet that very fear is itself proof of my argument.

I may say that I am writing on these matters with the hope of inducing the public to take greater interest in the government of the city in which they afford to have such pride.—Yours faithfully,

C. L. RICHARDSON.

W. J. McNamara's Platform

THE present system of municipal government has proven unsatisfactory, cumbersome and expensive, lacking in effectiveness, responsiveness to the public will, economy and efficiency. An Elective Commission form, such as has furnished the solution in many other cities, embodying the Initiative, the Referendum and the Recall, holds great promise, definitely locating responsibility and placing credit where it belongs. It is my belief that this system should be applied to Edmonton as quickly as the legislative details can be worked out. If elected I promise to submit this question to the ratepayers in the form of a plebiscite and in the event of its adoption by them to lose no time in bringing it into force.

W. J. McNAMARA,
The Candidate for Mayor.

If elected, I will endeavor to enlist the active co-operation of the commissioners and heads of departments in an effort to bring about the greatest efficiency and harmony possible under the present system.

Pending the adoption of Commission government with its complete publicity, there should be no more secret sessions of the council, council committees or the commission. The broadest publicity should be given to all public business.

Pending the adoption of the Referendum, as provided in Commission government, the citizens should be given every opportunity to express themselves by plebiscite upon any and every large question of public interest and to meet this requirement there should be adopted by council some broad general policy under which, by petition to council by a certain number of ratepayers a plebiscite could be invoked. Under this plan the street railway system should be submitted without delay.

Organized labor should be duly organized. Where contracts are to be let there should be specifically set out the wages to be paid upon a fair wage basis and penalties should be provided for failure upon the part of the contractor to abide by the wage clause in the contract.

Taxes in Edmonton are too high for the results accruing. The City should get a dollar's value for every dollar outlaid, in the central administration which is becoming greviously overloaded, in local improvements the cost of which appears to be out of all proportion to the work done or provided for—as evidenced in the tax notices—and in the handling of the utilities, the capitalization of which has been in many cases badly mismanaged.

Extension of utilities should be made impartially upon a basis of population, sufficient to guarantee a revenue to meet capital cost of installation and the cost of maintenance and operation.

Extensions to paving, sewer and such improvements should be made with a view to serving the greatest number of people and never with a view to the exploitation of property interests.

An immediate effort should be made to place the street railway upon a practical and businesslike basis such as will guarantee a satisfactory service and make the utility self-sustaining.

Edmonton should always own and operate all its utilities.

W. J. McNamara

FIRST THINGS

WIRELESS.

The first wireless message sent from a ship at sea was dispatched from the American liner St. Paul to the Needles, 15 years ago today, November 15, 1899. The vessel was then 66 miles from the land station. The wireless was first used in saving lives early in 1909, when Jack Binns sent out his memorable call for help from the stricken White Star liner Republic, after her collision with the Florida, off Nantucket. Later in the same year help summoned by wireless resulted in the rescue of 150 people from the steamer Ohio, off the coast of Alaska. After that hardly a month passed without the wireless demonstrating its utility by the saving of human lives. The Canadian government steamer Stanley was warned of the presence of icebergs by a message from the Grenfell station on the Labrador coast, and had been hardly brought to when a berg was sighted in the fog. The Canadian cruiser Niobe, which went on the rocks off Cape Sable in 1911, also summoned help by wireless. The Titanic disaster and the burning of the Volturno afford more recent examples of the beneficence of Marconi's great invention.

SAINT ANDREW'S NIGHT WILL BE CELEBRATED

Sons o' Auld Scotia Will Duly Observe Anniversary of Patron Saint.

The day sacred to the patron saint of Scotland will be observed on Monday evening the 1st of December, St. Andrew's day, through the medium of a concert to be held in the Empire auditorium at 8 p.m.

No efforts are being spared by the Scotchmen of Edmonton to make this celebration unique in the annals of the city. The songs of Auld Scotia, the Highland Fling, step dancing, and everything that is entertaining, professional or amateuer, Scotch or nassmach will be represented as never before in a Scotch concert in this city.

EDMONTON AMATEUR OPERATIC SOCIETY

Those Wishing to Take Part in Winter's Work Should Notify Secretary.

Lovers of music in Edmonton are interested in the announcement that the Edmonton Amateur Operatic society is about to resume its rehearsals for the winter's work.

Arthur Frost, secretary treasurer, has issued a call to all those interested, or who intend taking part in the season's work, to present themselves at the assembly hall of the McKay avenue school next Monday, November 17, at 8 p.m. This will be the first rehearsal of the season.

WILSON'S TRIUMPH.

London, Nov. 15—The Morning Post in an editorial, says that it seems probable that President Wilson will score a distinct triumph, Huerta's supporters having realized that while a military action might cost the United States dearly that country would be bound to triumph in the end.

To the Ratepayers and Tenants of the City of Edmonton

Ladies and Gentlemen,—At the request of a number of the recognized best business men of this city to offer myself as a candidate for aldermanic honors at the forthcoming civic election, I have consented to do so.

I have been a resident of Edmonton since 1902, and believe that I should be able to do good work as a member of the city council. If you, the electors, choose to elect me, I will most assuredly appreciate your confidence and support. Should I be elected, I have only one promise to make, and that is, that I will endeavor to serve the city, and the city only, to the best of my ability.

That a plebiscite should be taken before the next session of the legislature to obtain the views of the electors on the question of municipal government by elective commission, meets with my approval.

Yours respectfully,
J. R. McINTOSH.

POULTRY MEN WILL MEET MONDAY IN MONTHLY SESSION

Main Topic for Discussion Will be "Preparing Birds for Exhibition."

The regular monthly meeting of the Edmonton Poultry and Pet Stock association will be held in the council chamber on Monday evening next at 8 p.m. As this will be the last general meeting before the poultry show it is very important that all members of the association and intending exhibitors attend this meeting.

An attractive programme is being prepared, the main topic of the evening's discussion being "Preparing birds for exhibition." This subject will be handled by several exhibitors of many years' experience and many valuable suggestions will be learned from listening to what they have to say.

In addition to this discussion, the executive are endeavoring to secure a lady speaker to give an address on poultry topics, so that it is hoped that all lady members of the association turn out in force. As entries for the show close on the 20th inst., it is requested that as far as possible the members hand in their entries at this meeting so that the committee may be able to form an estimate of the number of coops that will be required.

Arrangements for the biggest and best poultry exhibition ever held in Edmonton are now practically complete, except for the taking of the entries which are now beginning to come in to the secretary. Every indication points to a show which will rank second to none in the west. The old Presbyterian church has been secured and the show will be opened to the pubic on Tuesday, December 2. A program committee has been appointed to arrange for the formal opening, notice of which will appear in the press of the city in due course. It is also planned to hold a series of lectures during the evenings of the show. Prize lists may be obtained upon application to the secretary, W. McC. Moore, 304 C.P.R. block. All entries close November 20.

ARCHBISHOP LEGAL WILL HAVE BUSY DAY ON SUNDAY

Will Consecrate St. Rene's Church, Separate School and Bless Bells.

Sunday will be a busy day for His Grace Archbishop Legal, and memorable in Roman Catholic church circles as marking a notable advance in church and school building. His grace will bestow the archiepiscopal blessing on one church, the bell of the same, and two Separate schools.

Tomorrow morning at nine the archbishop will consecrate the new church of St. Rene's in Strathcona S.E., and immediately after bless the bell. A new temporary separate school in Gallahaier is also to be blessed and declared open, immediately after the celebration of mass in St. Rene's. In the afternoon at three the new separate school near the south side exhibition grounds will be blessed.

These three consecrations are some indication of the growth of the Roman Catholic population of the south side, as the opening of the two new schools has been rendered imperative by the rapid increase.

The school on Gallagher's Flats is a two-room frame building, and is expected to contain over 80 pupils. The other school to be opened by his grace has accommodation for 320 school children, which, together with the temporary school, makes allowance for an increase of 300 in the school population of the south side.

Within the past year the increase in the number of pupils attending the separate schools of Greater Edmonton totals 306, there being now over 1,200 children on the rolls. The inclusion of North Edmonton and Elm Park during the past year must, of course, be considered in estimating the above total.

The following figures indicate the present status of the separate schools in Edmonton up to date: Number of rooms, 36, with accommodation for 1440 pupils. Calder, 3 rooms; North Edmonton 3 rooms; Kinistino avenue 12; Third street, 8; Gallagher Flats, 2; near south side exhibition grounds, 4; Second avenue N.W., south side, 4.

THE WEATHER.

Forecast—Manitoba and Saskatchewan, fair today and on Sunday, with higher temperature. Alberta, fair and mild today and on Sunday.

Bulletin—The weather in Manitoba has turned a little milder and throughout Saskatchewan and Alberta it has been fair and mild.

TRADE COUNCIL NOTES

CARPENTERS DISTRICT COUNCIL

On Wednesday night last the usual meeting of the Edmonton district council of carpenters was held, with a good attendance of delegates present.

The business agents' reported the unionizing of several jobs, and their reports were accepted.

It was mentioned that the president of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners had been in Edmonton, and reported that the amalgamation with the Amalgamated Society had been carried on in this continent, and would probably come into force on January 1 next.

The delegates then considered the matter of celebrating this event, and an entertainment committee was appointed by the chairman.

Brotherhood of Carpenters.

On Tuesday last the general president of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America addressed the members of the local unions of Edmonton. His talk was largely a matter of detail work connected with his office, and he incidentally mentioned that the U. B. had spent upwards of $50,000 fighting injunctions in the U.S.A. This had been in order to ensure a fair wage to mill workers. He said the injunction was taken out by the Payne Lumber company, of Oshkosh, Wis., who employed children and women at wages as low as 87 cents per day. When asked by members for some cheaper remedy or one more efficient, he had nothing to offer.

Socialist Meeting.

On Sunday night next at 8 o'clock, under the auspices of the Socialist Party of Canada, a meeting will be held in the Lyceum theatre, when J. R. Knight will address the meeting on "War." The imminence of war to the south of us makes this a very live subject at the present moment, and comrade Knight's undoubted popularity as a speaker, with his experience as a veteran of the South African war, together also with his close study of the subject, makes him peculiarly adapted to address the public on the institutions of legalized murder. The success of the meeting of Sunday last and the enthusiasm displayed, ensures a bumper meeting for tomorrow night.

LABOR NOTES.

A new Minnesota law requiring the safeguarding of machinery became effective last month.

A new daily labor paper has been launched in Erie, Pa.

Eighty-five per cent. of workers in the feather industry of Germany have wage agreements with employers.

Spain has a law prescribing a weekly rest day, but it is rarely enforced.

The next international co-operative societies' congress will take place in Basel, Switzerland, in 1916.

One hundred of those involved in the gas workers' strike in Sydney, Australia, which was settled recently, were fined altogether over $4,500.

A state labor bureau will be established by the California state typographical conference for the equal distribution of labor of this craft throughout the state.

Work has been commenced on the new San Francisco Labor Temple.

The Trades and Labor congress of Canada now has over 80,000 members.

The carpenters' unions in Holland has doubled its membership in the past five years.

Day laborers in Bombay, India, receive an average of about 20 cents a day.

More than 600,000 men are employed by the railways of the United Kingdom.

The Order of Railroad Telegraphers added nearly 1,000 new members to its rolls in September.

At its recent convention in Philadelphia, the Textile Workers of America adopted a resolution demanding a uniform scale of wages for all textile workers throughout the United States.

Fifteen thousand members of the United Mine Workers of America in the Eastern Ohio district have voted to continue the assessment of one dollar a month per member to aid the striking members of Colorado.

A strike of 1,500 telegraphers employed on the Chicago, Rock Island, and Pacific Railroad has been averted by the mediators after a long conference presided over by C. W. W. Hanger, assistant commissioner of mediation and conciliation under the New-Lands Act. The railroads have increased the wages about five per cent., which means nearly $45,000 per year gain for the telegraphers.

NEW ISSUE OF RENTES

Paris, Nov. 15.—After the French cabinet had approved yesterday the recommendation of the minister of finance for the issue of $52,000,000 of 5 per cent. government rentes to cover extraordinary military expenditure, a bill embodying the proposals was introduced in the chamber. The price of the issue was not made public, but it is assumed in banking circles that it will be about the same as the present price of French 3 per cents.

SINGS IN DEN OF LIONS

Berlin, Nov. 15.—Singing in a den of lions is far more profitable even than singing at the metropolitan opera house in New York. Mme. Emy Destinn received from a picture film company $12,000 for her recent appearance in a cage with a number of lions. In addition to this the concern had to pay $5000 to an insurance company to insure the prima donna's life for $126,000 before she would take the risk.

Nemo Corsets—A Boon to Womankind

A good corset should give perfect support to the body without undue pressure at any point. Digestive troubles, headaches and a host of other ills are often attributable direct to an ill fitting corset. "Nemo Model 523" by an ingenious arrangement of elastic bands affords perfect support for the overdeveloped abdomen without interfering with comfort or interfering with the circulation. No. "506" is the same style corset but without the abdominal support. Both have elastic inserts over the hips for self reducing purposes and for allowing the utmost comfort in sitting. The pair $6

END OF THE ROAD AT THE MONARCH

"Protea" is a Big Feature at This Playhouse on

The big feature attraction at the Monarch theatre will be "Protea," the story of a woman diplomatic agent. This latest of all European sensations is in five parts and will open an engagement at the Monarch for three days starting [illegible] November the 17th. It is brimful of thrills and excitement.

The story opens in the offices of the commissioner of police at Gottenberg in Messania. The commissioner receives instructions from his government that a treaty in opposition to their interests is about to be concluded between the two neighboring states of Keltia and Slavonia, and the commissioner is further instructed to obtain a copy of this document, at any cost.

The commissioner decides that one person alone can be entrusted with this perilous mission, and that is Protea a notorious adventuress; so Protea is duly summoned.

She accepts the commission on condition that she may have the assistance of one person whom she will need. The official agrees and learns that this person is named "The Eel" and is at present in prison.

An order is given for his release, and the commissioner and Protea await his coming in the former's office. "The Eel" fully vindicates his character, for on the way from the prison he eludes his captors and climbs with astonishing agility up to the upper windows of a house into which he disappears. The messengers return crestfallen to the commissioner, and acquaint him with the prisoner's escape.

Almost at the same moment the uniformed man-servant sheds his disguise, and to the unconcealed astonishment of all save "Protea" discloses himself as "The Eel." Having thus early given the commissioner an example of their skill and ingenuity, the two spies set out, on their commission

Meanwhile, the Slavonic ambassador at Gottenberg is instructed by his government to warn Keltia that Messania is endeavoring to obtain a copy of the treaty, and that two of the cleverest spies have been commissioned to obtain it.

The ambassador immediately responds by sending his secretary, Viscount Osthanen, to warn Keltia.

At the railway station Protea recognizes the messenger from Slavonia and throwing off her disguise, quickly transforms herself into a beautiful and elegant woman. She follows the secretary into the refreshment room of the Frontier station, and succeeds in attracting the Viscount's attention.

The remainder of the story should be seen on the films.

HASSELL EXPLAINS HONOR SYSTEM IN THE PENITENTIARY

Ex-Convict Has Been Invited to Inspect Edmonton's Penal Institution.

"It's a good world after all,
"And the Great God must have made it,
"Leastwise that's what I say,
"When a hand rests on my shoulder
"In a friendly sort of way."

So ends the lecture of Mr. Hassell on "The Honor System" in his performance at the Royal theatre, Namayo avenue. After these words have been pronounced and a slide is flashed upon the screen, showing Gov. Oswald West, of Oregon, "the man who made the Honor System possible," one witnesses the end of a story that will linger long in the memory.

By the courtesy of the warden of the penitentiary Mr. Hassell has been invited to go through that institution in this city tomorrow morning. In order to study the methods employed there, and he will consequently be able in his lecture tonight to explain the comparison between the United States penitentiaries and the ones in our own country.

Tonight is the last appearance of this brilliant lecturer in this city, and it is expected that a record crowd will attend. It is seldom that a lecturer so grips his audience that persons will attend again and again to hear the same lecture and see the same pictures, but such is the case here. It has been noticed that patrons have attended every day during the engagement.

The performance is all the more unique in that Mr. Hassell, being himself an ex-convict, is able to speak with a truthfulness on the matter of the prison system, that it is hard to find elsewhere. He carries with him letters from some of the most foremost men in the political world, as well as one from Gov. Oswald West, of Oregon, the originator of the honor system.

That delightful soprano, Miss Marguerite Matthews, will appear again tonight in her vocal selections, singing "The Garden of My Heart," and a selection from Rigoletto. Possessing, as she does, a voice of marvelous flexibility, she is able to sing these songs with the greatest ease. Her charming personality has made her a great favorite with patrons of this theatre.

The number that receives the most applause and which is evidently the favorite with the audience, is a delightful little comedy entitled "Mutt and Jeff in All the World Loves a Lover." This number received many recalls each night and is thoroughly enjoyed.

Another delightful number is the singing of Mr. Geo. S. Beach in "Down by the Old Mill Stream." The chorus being delightfully harmonized by another voice in an obscure part of the theatre.

The management of the Royal showed great judgment in booking this attraction for four days, as it has been so popular that the house has been playing to almost capacity so far. It is fully expected that the S.R.O. sign will be out tonight for the farewell performance.

It is to be regreted that more performances of this high class nature are not brought to Edmonton.

A SCOTCH CONCERT

A grand Scotch concert to celebrate the anniversary of St. Andrew, the patron saint of Scotland, will be held in the Empire auditorium on Monday evening, the 1st of December.

A great programme of Scottish song, instrumental music and step dancing by professional artists has been arranged, and the greatest gathering is expected on this important occasion.

FIRST THINGS

FLORADORA.

The first appearance of the original "Floradora" sextette was made at the Casino in New York, 13 years ago today. Since then hundreds of show girls have claimed to have been among the original sextette, and they are almost as numerous as survivors of the charge of the light brigade, or drummer boys of Shiloh. The bona fide "originals" were Misses Margaret Walker, Daisy Greene, Agnes Weyburn, Susan Drake, Marjorie Relyea and Vaughan Tezsmith. The success of the "divinely tall and most divinely fair" Floradora show girls resulted in the formation of several "Floradora" companies and gave rise to a host of imitators. Since then the tall, statuesque and stately show girl has lost her vogue and in the musical comedy companies today, it is the petite, sprightly, slender, and vivacious chorus lady who wins success, applause and a substantial salary. The question, "Are there more at home like you?" is now answered with a sad and tearful affirmative by the Junoesque show girls, who find it increasingly difficult to get an engagement, and who perforce, must remain at home much of the time.

METHODIST DIVINE DEAD.

Utica, N. Y., Nov. 15.—Rev. David W. Aylesworth, aged 83, died at Bartlett, Oneida county this evening. He was a prominent Methodist divine, holding many charges in this country and Canada, and at one time was lecturer for the Order of Good Templars.

A BEAUTIFUL BABY

Gained Wonderfully After Being Put On A Well Known Food.

Mrs. E. Warner of 32 Winnifred Ave., Toronto, in writing about Neave's Food, says, "I have used Neave's Food for my baby and it has agreed when everything else failed. He has gained wonderfully since I started giving it to him."

Mr. A. J. Forgue, Labelle Street, Montreal, writes, under date 13 Oct: "My little daughter, born Aug. 12th, likes Neaves Food very much. She is a bunch of fat."

Mrs. J. Fallon of Whitby, Ont., says "Neave's Food is the only food that has agreed with our little boy. He is brighter, and his flesh is firmer, since taking it."

Neave's Food has been the standard Infant's Food in Great Britain for more than 85 years.

Mothers and prospective mothers may obtain a free tin of Neave's Food and a valuable book, "Hints About Baby", by writing Edwin Utley, 14 Front Street East, Toronto, who is the Agent for Canada. (Mention this paper.)

Neave's Food is sold in 1 lb. air tight tins by all Druggists in Canada. 42

FOR BETWEEN SEASON'S TIME

By MAY MANTON

MATERIALS for the autumn are marvelously beautiful. All the crêpe finished silks are to be extensively worn, charmeuse satin retains its important place and also many of the poplin weaves will be seen while there are novelties almost without number. In the first group is shown a gown of broché crêpe with trimming of satin and collar of lace. The little puckered up drapery in both the skirt and the blouse makes an important feature. The back of the skirt forms a point and this panel can be extended to make a little train but the greater number of girls will like it cut off in walking length. As a matter of course, plain crêpe or charmeuse could be substituted for the broché but the combination shown here is an excellent one. The three successive gowns illustrate variations of the panel idea and panels make a somewhat important feature of prevailing modes. The striped gown is made of a silk and wool novelty with collar and cuffs of a Cubist silk that gives just a touch of bright color. The skirt gives the tunic idea but it is really all in one, with the upper portions being stitched to the lower portion and the panel sufficiently within the edge to carry out the idea. The trimming of buttons and simulated button-holes makes a good effect. In place of the striped material, reversed for the trimming portions, could be used a contrasting one, and plain material made up with striped or with figured would make a smart effect for combinations will be much used and manufacturers are especially catering to gowns of the sort. The very narrow panel shown on the seated figure can be utilized for embroidery or for lace quite as well as for contrasting material. As the gown is shown here, it is made of the new China crêpe that is heavier than crêpe de chine and wonderfully beautiful. The collar and panel are of heavy lace and the chemisette is of tucked chiffon. The gown of checked material shows overlapped edges with a wedge shaped panel and the panel and collar are made of plain charmeuse satin while the gown itself is of a checked material combining silk and wool. The drooping shoulders and the rolling collar with lace jabot are especially smart.

EVERYTHING that has a slightly rough finish is to be worn. The first gown of the second group shows a variation of silk éponge combined with charmeuse satin. It is exceedingly smart and it gives just the slender lines that the women who are seeking an effort of height will appreciate. The draped sash is noteworthy, for everything that gives an Oriental suggestion is to be found in autumn fashions. White gowns are exceedingly smart and are always beautiful. The one shown on the second figure is made of white charmeuse with trimming of black and white silk. The Medici frill that finishes the neck edge must not be overlooked, for such frills are to be found on the newest models and are very generally becoming.

Girls who are thinking of remodeling will be seen to like the remaining gowns of the group for they offer interesting suggestions. The one to the left shows charmeuse satin over broché crêpe, but could easily be reproduced in any two harmonizing fabrics. The back portion of the skirt is shaped to give a cutaway effect and lapped over the front while the bodice is composed of an over-blouse and guimpe. Peplums of all kinds are to be worn and one of the greatest advantages of the peplum blouse is found in the coat suggestion that renders it adapted to street wear throughout the autumn. The gown at the inner right is made from French serge with the trimming portions of figured silk. There is a plaited panel at the back of the skirt that renders it both new and smart. If preferred, the sleeves can be made shorter but the long ones are given first choice.

SEPARATE blouses are among the real necessities of life and no one realizes that more fully than the girl away from home. The six that are shown here are among the best. They can be made of color to match the skirt or suit or they can be made of the white that is always so useful or they can be made of light weight silk of color to harmonize with the skirt and, at the same time in contrast, for one of the latest decrees is that the blouse need not match the skirt so long as the costume idea prevails.

IN the first group are shown three plain blouses. One is closed at the front and made with the sleeves sewed to it at the drooping shoulder line and another is in kimono style closed at the back. In the center of the group is shown one of the very new waists that give a bosom effect and include a Tuxedo collar. In the picture, this last waist is made of charmeuse satin with the "bosom" of the same material in white and tucked while with trimming is of fancy silk. The kimono waist is made of one of the new fancy crêpes with trimming of net frills, and the waist closed at the front shows a pretty tub silk in little conventional designs while the collar and cuffs are of plain silk to give contrast.

WAISTS of a more fancy kind are shown in the second group and are especially available for afternoon functions. The one in bolero style can be made just as illustrated or with sleeves to match. It is charmingly attractive, youthful and very generally becoming. In the picture, Canton crêpe is combined with flowered crêpe and accordion plaited chiffon, and accordion plaiting is always pretty and always becoming to youthful figures. It will be much used throughout the autumn and winter and the blouse that is made entirely thereof includes many attractive features. It is designed to be made over a lining that holds the plaits in place and is closed at the back. If high neck is wanted the chemisette can be cut high and finished with a collar. With the coat suit, this blouse would be charming made of chiffon with trimming of satin and with just the little pointed portion above the girdle to match the skirt. The blouse in the center of the group shows full length box plaits and quite novel sleeves. Here, the under sleeves are of the same material but a very pretty effect can be obtained by making them of lace or net to match the chemisette.

FASHION NOTES

SINCE there are at least some summer weather to belooked for, discussions as to the materials and styles for the autumn may seem a little premature, but many beautiful things are being exploited and there are interesting facts to be learned. While most of us are largely given over to that pleasuring that comes with the summer weather, there is always a little time to give to questions of dress and fashion and the fact that we are to have marvelously beautiful materials undoubtedly will be welcome news. To be sure we have had exquisite fabrics for a number of seasons and, year by year, manufacturers have seemed to outdo themselves but there seems ever room for improvement, for the opening display of dress materials is ravishing in very truth.

IN a general way, velvet and rough finished materials will be given first place for coats and for suits. Wool velvet has been developed in numberless fascinating variations and the silk and wool velvets are beautiful beyond description. Again all the matelassé and broché effects appear in wool, in silk and in silk and wool mixtures. What is known as Duvetine, or a material woven of silk and wool with plush-like pile yet extremely soft and light of weight, is a novelty. For the most part it combines two tones and will be ideal for suit trimmings as well as for entire coats and wraps.

INDEED it might be said that velvet gives the keynote of the season, for the velvet effect is found in the greater number of fabrics offered. Undoubtedly, it will be combined, with plain wool and with silk and treated in various ways but, nevertheless the velvet effect is the predominating note. Some of the new wool velours are woven in a corduroy stripe; others again are woven in a wide stripe with just a single flattened thread between to mark them and there are velours in all the beautiful colors, in two-tones effects, in stripes and in checks.

Broadcloth as we know it is not expected to have great vogue, but there is a new broadcloth with an outlined plaid thrown upon it in a material not unlike éponge that is expected to have great favor and there is a broadcloth that is woven in two-toned stripes and in two-toned checks, while all these smooth-finished fabrics will be used in combination with rough whether they finally are made into entire costumes or are not.

A GREAT deal of plaid is exploited both in silk and in wool and plaid surah makes ideal trimming for early season costumes.

COLORS are a real delight. Blue in all its wonderful shades, the dull predominating, green and brown are conspicuous. Many of the two-toned broadcloths combine green and brown in narrow stripes and there are tiny checks of these two colors that are always attractive, one enhancing the other. Old blues, as they are called are much to be noted. The prune shades, the tan shades and many of the new reds are also conspicuous. There are really wonderfully beautiful colors found in the velvets and we may safely look for the yellows and the rose shades for evening use and also as trimmings.

IT is hardly the time to expect really new models yet new things are constantly appearing that give indications and again we are in such close communication with Paris and Vienna that we seem to know what they are doing day by day. According to the very latest accounts, the rather extraordinary figure that throws the abdomen out, the back in and bends the knees has become passe in the world of dress and there is hope that we look for an erect figure, a properly thrown out chest by the time cold weather reaches us. Again we are informed that, while the extremists of Paris have been as foolish or perhaps more foolish than those on this side of the sea in following the absurdities launched by dressmakers who are ever seeking means of advertising themselves, the really well dressed women in all the capitals of Europe have put aside the vulgar eccentricities and are demanding costumes suited to their own needs, adapted to themselves. How far such evidence of a return to sanity will influence autumn fashions it is difficult to say but certain it is that no woman need make a caricature of herself in order to be smart. True smartness means distinction and distinction is best obtained by demanding what is adapted to oneself. It never can come about by distorting oneself to meet any exploited demand.

SOME of the newest costumes show combinations of materials that are really very beautiful and give marked evidence of the favor in which plaid is to be held. A charming little street costume that came over on one of the big liners this week combines a smooth-finished white material plaided with khaki and dark blue with plain khaki éponge. The skirt is made of the plaid bias and is quite plain, buttoned right down the front with small blue velvet buttons. The little coat of the éponge is made with slightly raised waist line below which it is abruptly cut away at the front and it opens over a narrow waistcoat of the plaid that is finished with a rolled-over collar. The three-quarter sleeves are completed by plaid cuffs, too, and there is a little belt of blue velvet. The accompanying hat is blue with blue ribbon and a bunch of small pink roses.

A DISCREET little costume that also bears the stamp of the very latest ideas is made with a skirt of black and white check and a little coat of plain black cloth. The skirt is one of the very newest ones cut in one piece and drawn up at the front to form drapery and the little coat is shorter at the front, long at the back, and is fastened with little tabs that are crossed over a waistcoat of white batiste that is finished at either only half convinced, notwithstanding the fact that a few of his closest friends and political advisors are urging, although with due caution, that he accede.

HUERTA HESITATING; WILL CONGRESS CONVENE TODAY?

The reports of this element in the cabinet conferred yesterday with Nelson O'Shaughnessy, the American charge d'affaires, but were given no assurances that President Wilson has unbent sufficiently to warrant hope that negotiations will be reopened. In spite of this, however, there are friends of Huerta who now are convinced that the United States government is not bluffing, and who believe they will be able yet to bring about the desired changes in time to prevent a complete rupture of the diplomatic relations. This conviction is based upon the fact that Washington as yet has not put into effect its implied threat to remove the embassy or announced any new course of action.

Britain Will Back States.

Sir Lionel Carden, the British minister, has conveyed to Huerta an intimation that the United States is in earnest in its intentions, and is said to have told the president that the British government is disposed to back the United States up. For publication, Sir Lionel was reticent regarding his representations to Huerta, but it is an open secret that they were made, and Huerta is said to have been deeply impressed when he realized that the action which he had believed would stand by him indefinitely had joined with one which he already regards as his enemy.

That Huerta's friends are attempting to persuade him to vacate the presidency, or at least to prevent the new congress from meeting, is a feature of the situation that is not discussed by them except with absolute secrecy. It is one of those subjects which it is considered not safe to discuss. And all their efforts have been made more by means of intimations and suggestions than by definite advice.

Considers Elimination.

Huerta is said to be considering his own elimination, although this is always denied whenever the direct question is put to any one connected with the government.

Today is the date fixed for the preliminary meeting of the congress, and last night there appeared to be no reason to believe that it would not convene, notwithstanding the demand of the United States that it should not do so.

It has been represented to Huerta that the United States doubtless will regard this preliminary meeting as seriously as it would the formality of opening, since it will indicate the intention of the Mexican government to defy Washington in this regard. Those now lined up against Huerta admit, however, that his position is a perplexing one, since the law provides that the resignation of the president must be made to congress. The only congress in Mexico today is the last one Huerta does not feel justified in compounding his humiliation, his friends say, by sending his resignation to the penitentiary.

Claim Demand Unreasonable.

Advisors of Huerta, who are sending an emissary to treat with Mr. O'Shaughnessy, insist that this last demand of the United States is an unreasonable one, since, if the new congress is permitted to meet there, then will be a body to which Huerta can send his resignation in due form and maintain his dignity. It has been suggested that in order to assure the United States that the new congress will be an innocuous institution, a document could be prepared, setting forth the only measures this body would be expected to enact and that care would be taken to see to it that among them there was none that would be objectionable to Washington.

It is not denied that, to permit congress to meet without previous assurances from the executive would be at the best a gamble, but it is contended that any other course is difficult on account of the laws governing the resignation of the president.

Congress Expected to Meet.

There is no doubt that congress is expected to meet today in preliminary sessions. Most of the deputies elected in the recent balloting are present in the capital and up to a late hour last night no indication had come that the convening of the legislative body had been postponed.

Mr. O'Shaughnessy has preserved a consistent silence regarding all developments of the situation. There is in all Mexico no man more carefully watched by personal friends, as well as by government agents to see that he does not leave town and thus confirm by act the ever present rumor that he has been recalled. A question which has been put to Mr. O'Shaughnessy innumerable times by representatives of the government who have called upon him since Mr. Lind passed out of the difficulty is regarding the identity of the man who could be named to succeed Huerta.

Pedro Lascurain has been sugested as the logical successor to the presidency as he was secretary of foreign affairs at the time President Madero and Vice-president Suarez were eliminated. Lascurain then became president of the republic and held the position for 47 minutes, resigning in favor of Huerta whom he had appointed to department of the interior, the ranking cabinet post, as he did not name during his brief incumbency any of the office of chief executive a new minister of foreign affairs. Lascurain, as his successor does not appeal to Huerta and there is reason to doubt that he is altogether acceptable to the constitutionalists.

Another suggestion made is that general Felipp Engeles, who is now with the rebels, but who has a long time ago as an officer in the regular army succeeded General Blanquet as minister of war.

This suggestion is wholly repugnant to Huerta, who recently brought about the dismemorable disarming by a company of Angeles who broke his parole, following his arrest some time ago by the rebels in the north. It is doubtful if Huerta would consent, except in the last emergency to yield his position to General Carranza or to any one identified with the rebellion.

Recognize Huerta.

Mexico City, Nov. 15.—Portugal and Bulgaria have been added to the list of countries whose governments have given recognition to the provisional government of General Huerta. Querido Moheno, the Mexican minister to Portugal, has announced that autograph letters from President Arriaga of Portugal and King Ferdinand of Bulgaria had been presented yesterday to President Huerta.

Huerta's counsellors, who have expressed themselves as being anxious to re-open the negotiations between the Mexican government and Washington had received no intimation up to an early hour of President Wilson's willingness. They still hope, however, that Charge O'Shaughnessy will be instructed to resume the conferences. Up to late yesterday, however, the counsellors of the provisional president had received nothing definite from General Huerta in the way of promises.

Washington Still Waiting.

Washington, D.C., Nov. 15.—Washington today awaited despatches from Charge O'Shaughnessy as to the effect of the instructions sent him late last night by Secretary Bryan, informing Counsellors of Huerta who have displayed an anxiety to reopen negotiations, on just what conditions the United States would assent to further parleys.

As the new Mexican congress was to be convened by official order late today, it was said here that developments would materialize. Officials are confident that Huerta realizes not only that the United States is in earnest in its intentions to oust him, and may accomplish his elimination by lifting the embargo on arms, but also that Great Britain, as well as the other foreign powers, have assured before long a passive attitude of acquiescence in the American policy.

British Minister's Intimation.

That Sir Lionel Cardan, British minister to Mexico, is communicating to Huerta intimations of a strong character that he must eliminate himself in accordance with the American contention is said to be the pivotal point of the last two days.

Mexico City, Nov. 15—The proprietors of business houses here are expecting their employees to leave the capital and proceed to Vera Cruz.

Nelson O'Shaughnessy, the American charge d'affaires, refused today to give information of any character concerning the situation between the United States and Mexico.

NEW STREET CAR SCHEDULE WILL BE IN FORCE MONDAY

All Specials and Turnouts Have Been Installed and Everything Ready.

Superintendent Woodroofe announced this afternoon that with the exception of the Nelson avenue belt line everything is now in readiness to put into effect the new schedule on Monday morning. All the specials and turnouts have been completed, and at last the department has reached the point where it can give the public an up-to-date service.

By referring to the advertising columns of the Capital Realty may be obtained of the time table of each of the six routes under the new system. The commissioners expect to get a reply any day from the board of railway commissioners, giving permission to cross the G.T.P. tracks at Twenty-first street, when the Nelson avenue belt line will be operated.

The new schedule as advertised, gives the regular running time of the cars on the various routes, but in addition to this the service will be doubled up during the rush hours, that at times when something special is being pulled off at any particular point served by the street cars. That is, where a 15-minute service is advertised, between the hours of 7 and 9, 12 and 1 noon, and 4.30 and 7 p.m., a 7½-2 minute schedule will be effective.

In brief, the six routes and the regular time schedule effective on and after Monday next, are as follows: Route 1, North Edmonton to Inglewood, 15 minute service; route 2, Norwood to Bear Park (low level bridge), 15 minute service; route 3, Norwood belt line, 15 minute service; route 4, high level bridge, 10 minute service; route 5, Highlands and Glenora, 15 minute service to 9.15 a.m., and from 4 p.m., intervening hours, 30 minute service; route 6, west end belt line, 20 minute service.

Cars operating on the low level bridge line will run out to 123rd street (old 17th street west) to accommodate those desiring to skate on McKiernan's Lake. Thousands of people have been crowding to this popular spot and arrangements are being made to give the best possible street car service. Additional waiting platforms will be erected next week and other improvements completed.

JUDGMENT FOR PLAINTIFF.

A. M. Clindinin secured judgment against E. S. McQuaid at the supreme court yesterday afternoon for the full amount of his claim for legal fees. Clindinin had contracted to erect a building for the defendant at a specified cost. When the building was completed and possession taken, it is alleged by Clindinin, that McQuaid refused to pay up according to contract, on the ground that there was faulty construction and that in places the structure varied from the specifications.

NEWS OF THE CITY.

How to Live Long—A very interesting and profitable hour is promised at the 4.45 p.m. men's meeting at the Y.M.C.A. on Sunday afternoon, when Dr. A. A. Nichols speaks on "How to live long." The Strangers' tea will be as usual at 5.45 p.m.

Ladies' Aid Sale—The ladies aid society of the Erskine Presbyterian church will have a sale and tea, Wednesday 21, in the church on the corner of Willow avenue and Carey street. Useful and fancy articles, home cooking and candy will be on sale. There will be special attraction for the children.

Mass Meeting Tomorrow—Dr. George B. Woshurn, the well-known traveller and lecturer who has been giving a series of illustrated travelogues in the First Baptist church, will address a special mass meeting for men in the First Baptist church on Sunday at 3 p.m. All men are invited.

New Secretary—At a meeting of the board of directors of the builders' exchange, held Wednesday evening, Mr. John McPherson was unanimously appointed secretary in succession to Mr. Weaver, resigned. Mr. McPherson has had a wide experience in the building and allied trades. He is a quantity surveyor by profession and has acted as estimating and cost engineer on some large contracts. In Edmonton he has been employed by Mr. W. J. Carter, contractor for Messrs. Cushing Bros. Co., Ltd., and was for a number of years superintendent of the James' street works department. Mr. McPherson's many friends wish him and the exchange every success in his new appointment.

St. Faith's Church—The above society was organized on the lines of the Anglican Young People society on Tuesday evening, November 11, at St. Faith's church. A short musical program was rendered, the event of the evening, however, being an exhibition in fencing between Mr. A. A. Murray and Mr. Murray, the fencing master. Mr. Murray is well known in fencing circles, being champion swordsman of B.C., champion swordsman of Ireland, and prize winner at the royal military tournament, London, Eng. This feature proved most interesting and evoked great applause.

St. David's Society—St. David's society held a very successful whist drive last Thursday evening in Cameron hall. Notwithstanding many counter attractions elsewhere in the city that night, a very good number of people assembled. Play ruled very keen, and many fine scores showed that several people were very near the winning mark. The following were Mrs. G. Gobies, the ladies' prize went to Mrs. G. Price. The gentlemen's first prize was captured by Mr. Sam Thomas, and Mr. Tal Griffiths had the "booby" of entertaining the gentlemen's "booby." The evening's events terminated by the singing of the Welsh national anthem, Mr. T. Jones taking the solo, Mrs. Roberts at the piano, and the assembled company taking up the refrain.

McKernan's Lake for Skaters—McKernan's lake, on the south side, is boomed by the street railway department as an ideal spot for skating and enjoying brisk winter airs. Acting under instructions from the city commissioners, superintendent Woodroofe is to have a platform built at the lake side, and special attention is given to securing all the traffic possible to and from the lake. Mr. Jackson, supervisor of playgrounds, will see the ice is kept clear of snow.

Ladies' Aid Sale—The Ladies' Aid society of Erskine Presbyterian church announce a sale of work and tea, to be held in the church, corner of Willow avenue and Carey street, on Friday, November 21.

Vespers at the Y.W.C.A.—The Vesper service at the Y.W.C.A. on Sunday, the 16th, at 4.15 p.m. will be in charge of Mrs. de Ven, Archdeacon Gray, and solos will be given by Miss Lotta Fleming, accompanied by Miss Hamilton. The Glee Club is now adding much to the interest shown in these services by the kind assistance of its members.

Addition to Empire Hotel—The unsightly relics of a bygone day which encumber the northeast corner of Second street and Victoria avenue are at last to be removed to make way for an imposing addition to the new Empire Hotel on Second street. Manager McAllister informed the Empire Auditorium would not be pulled down or converted, but would be built over and remodelled, and that the new building which is to extend from its present corner them extremity to the corner of Victoria avenue.

Steel Laying Suspended—The work at the end of steel laying gang engaged on railway to the west of Edmonton has been temporarily suspended, owing to the necessity for the construction of a long trestle over the marshy tract just to the west of Gekie, eight miles beyond Jasper.

Lecture on Jean Valjean—In a lecture so often delivered in all parts of Canada for many years past, that it has become a classic of the lecture platform, the Rev. Solomon Cleaver, late of Sherbourne street Methodist church, Toronto, held the unswerving interest of a large audience last night in McDougall church, when he showed them the real meaning of the character of Jean Valjean, in Victor Hugo's masterpiece, "Les Miserables." The pastor, Rev. Dr. Brushett, in a few words, paid a tribute to the talents of the well-known Methodist divine.

Judgment for Wright—Judgment was given in the district court yesterday in favor of ex-inspector Wright, who sued for a month's wages in lieu of notice of dismissal. The amount of the claim was $125 and costs.

Judgment Increased—At the supreme court this morning application was made for re-hearing in the decision given in the Clindinin vs. McQuaid case yesterday afternoon. The amount of damages awarded the plaintiff was $2,000 and costs. The plaintiff's counsel, K.C., was allowed to bring forward more evidence in connection with the case. His request was granted, and it is stated that the forged claim awarded was increased to $2,400 and costs.

Building Permits—The building permits issued by the city office this week reach a total of $43,500, as compared with $129,000 last week. Notwithstanding the inclement weather, building operations are maintaining a remarkable steadiness and during the week many permits have been issued for residences and other high-class structures.

Death of Fred Maunton—Fred Maunton died yesterday in the Misericordia hospital. He had been suffering from an attack of appendicitis and had undergone to have medical attention until he was in a very advanced stage. Mr. Maunton had been working for Mr. Glenn hotel during the last summer and was a very popular young man and highly esteemed by his employers. The funeral will take place on Sunday afternoon from the parlors of Connelly and McKinley.

R. D. Carr of Cleburne, Tex., has a beard seven feet in length. He is 69.

Danielson, Conn., has a smallpox and vaccination epidemic.

LATE MARKETS

CATTLE TRADE BRISK.

Liverpool, Eng., Nov. 15—Frank Devaney and company report that owing to further labor troubles in Ireland, which have threatened to curtail supplies, the market for cattle at Birkenhead today was brisk, and prices, though not quotably higher than last week's, were well maintained at 13 1-2 to 14c. per pound for Irish steers and heifers.

Montreal Stocks.

Montreal, Nov. 15.—The tone of the market continued firm in the early dealings today, but trading lacked special interest in any department. Iron, which closed at 43½ to 43¾ yesterday, opened at 43¾, and C.P.R. was unchanged at 225. Power displayed the same strength which has characterized it for the past few days, and advance to 210 from 209¾ at the close yesterday.

Liverpool Market.

Liverpool, Nov. 15.—Wheat, Easier. American cables and expectations of heavy shipment and the bearish modern miller report were offset by firmer Manitoba offers. Later free covering on firmer Argentina offers of new crop, firm Russian offers and yesterday's reports from Argentina of excessive rains in the north. There is a good continental demand for wheat, Germany and France and Italy are bidding higher.

Argentina—Heavy rains have fallen in the north, and in the south it is very dry in parts. Harvesting is about to commence in the north.

Russia—Going to light shipments of wheat, owners of steamers are loading parsley in order to vacate the ports before the close of navigation. This loading is being done at a concession to shippers.

POLICE COURT

Will Study Drink Problem.

Dick Jones was drunk last night. This was not the first time, as he remembered being in the police court on the same charge five days ago. He was given ten days with hard labor to think over the evils of drink.

A River of Booze.

Joe Kirton had his fill of booze up town, he then decided to go home. Arriving at the low level bridge he unwittingly looked at the Saskatchewan river and thought how lovely it would be if it were all whisky. He was still under the influence when the cop got hold of him. This morning Joe thought how lovely it would be if he didn't have to pay the fine of $4 and costs.

International Drunk.

Bill Fernasky, Otto Stein, Jas. McGin and S. D. Edwards were all drunk last night and were fined $4 and costs this morning.

Money Hath Its Penalties.

Louis Gangray has a bautiful voice. All that he needs to be a shining star is to get some publicity; so when he was arrested on a vagrancy charge and placed in the Pearce avenue police coop, he started an impromptu concert for the benefit of the policemen. Apparently they did not quite appreciate it, as a charge was laid to the effect that Louis was creating a disturbance. For this offense he was fined $10 and costs this morning.

Light on the Subject.

A. Stewart when he reports on his auto last night when he was enjoying a drive along Jasper avenue and to make his drive more enjoyable he was fined this morning $1 and costs.

Wanted it Settled.

H. B. Taylor who was fined on October 27 the sum of $1 and costs for having no light on his auto, appeared in the police court this morning. He had been laid against him this time, but he came in of his own will as there had been some difference between himself and a constable regarding his auto. The case was dismissed.

PEREMPTORY LIST OF CASES FOR NEXT WEEK

Edmonton Steam Shovellers vs. Gunn & Son—Mr. Pratt for the plaintiff and Mr. J. H. Biggar, K.C., for the defendant.

Campbell et al vs. Jasper Forest Saw Mill company—C. A. Grant, K.C., for the plaintiff and A. Stuart, K.C., and Mr. Harvie for the defendant.

McArthur & company vs. Koerman et al—Mr. Harvie for the plaintiff and J. M. McDonald for the defendant.

Welby vs. Fleming—Mr. Harrison for the plaintiff and Mr. Mustard for the dependant.

ADDRESSES HIGH SCHOOL.

Secretary Roche yesterday afternoon addressed the young men and women composing the students of Victoria High school. A serious study of civics has been incorporated in the curriculum of the Victoria High school, and in this respect this institution is abreast of all similar institutions of this continent, regardless of location. A debate on elective commission government, embodying the initiative, referendum and the recall will be held shortly. Secretary Roche states that the student body of the High school was one of the keenest, most interested and impartial audiences it has been his pleasure to address.

GRUBSTAKERS' STORY CONFIRMED BY ENGINEERS

Coal, Iron and Copper Have Been Located in Vicinity of Hubert, B.C.

Hubert, B. C., Nov. 15.—The enthusiastic reports by grubstakers published several months ago in reference to the rich mineral deposits close to this city are being fully verified by competent engineers. Coal, iron and copper have been located in large commercial quantities. The Copper river district to the south has a very extensive area of copper, running from 3 to 24 per cent. The local fields cover an area of several square miles, and from the analysis which has just been taken is especially adapted for steaming purposes. The iron is of the hematite variety and comes under the Bessemer limit.

Local residents are enthusiastic with the possibilities of an extensive development of the mineralized area, and are predicting a record-breaking development for this town, owing to the topography of the Bulkley Valley, practically all of the branch roads which will be necessary to open up this new territory will radiate from Hubert.

Mr. John B. Rittenhouse, consulting mining engineer, of New York City, has just completed an extensive examination and is very enthusiastic, especially about the iron deposits. The Iron Mines, Limited, a Prince Rupert Corporation, has already been organized to conduct large development operations. Large money interests have already acquired holdings, and as soon as the numerous reports which are now in compilation are accepted, the development will be on a magnitude duplicated in but few parts of the country.

WILL CARRY THE FIERY CROSS TO THE SASSENACHS

Jas. Larkin Will Endeavor to Create General Strike in Britain.

London, Nov. 15.—James Larkin has carried out his threat to bring his "fiery cross" to England. He crossed the Irish channel last night, and is now in Liverpool. He opens his campaign, that has for its object a general strike of British trade unionists in support of the Dublin strikers, at Manchester tomorrow, when he will address a meeting in Free Trade hall.

Organized opposition, however, that the more sober British trade unionist leaders will do their utmost to prevent their followers from being dragged into a costly and futile struggle. Danger, nevertheless lies in the influence of the mal-contents among the rank and file.

Before leaving Dublin, Larkin issued another series of threats, declaring he intended to isolate the city and bring about a strike of Irish railroad men on all the lines serving Dublin.

In the meantime, the government has intervened in the struggle.

Dublin castle was busy yesterday conferring with the employers representing the various interests involved. Lord Aberdeen and Sir James Dougherty, under secretary for Ireland, took apart in these conferences.

KING GEORGE IS INTERESTED IN LAND CAMPAIGN

London, Nov. 15.—King George is following with the closest interest the opening of the land campaign. This is a matter to which he has devoted considerable attention. By his direction, a verbatim copy of the speeches delivered by Lloyd George has been prepared and laid before him, and the king is to go through them very carefully when he arrives at York cottage next week.

The king is in many respects a model landlord, both as regards the question of wages and the provision of proper housing accommodations.

MAYOR SHORT WILL GIVE ACCOUNT OF STEWARDSHIP

Statement is Being Prepared and Will Be Given at Public Meeting Next Week.

Mayor Short announced this morning that summary statements of the business of the city during the present year is no wheing prepared by the city hall clerks. As soon as this statement is complete the public meeting of ratepayers will be called, at which the present administration will give an account of its stewardship. When asked the probable date of this meeting, the mayor replied that he hoped to be able to recommend to council on Tuesday night that the date for the public meeting should be set for either Wednesday or Thursday next. It will be held just as soon as possible, said his worship.

Larkin's Prosecution May Have Very Serious Results

Imprisonment Under Obsolete Statute Costing Liberal Party Heavily—Redmond Views Situation With Trepidation—Labor Party May Withdraw Support—Unionists in High Feather.

London, Nov. 15—James Larkin, grandson of one of the Manchester martyrs strike leader and demagogue, is exercising upon British politics an influence no less remarkable because it is obscure and the real mischief-work he as yet only recognized by those behind the scenes. Larkin after contributing powerfully to make Dublin what an Irish correspondent calls a city of the dead, with streets empty and silent and its harbor deserted, threatens to come to England today, carrying a "fiery cross" of labor revolt to set the country aflame.

That his arrest and imprisonment under an obsolete statute on the charge of sedition, cost the liberal party one parliamentary seat and reduced the majority of another is publicly admitted by members of the government. What is not yet admitted by the liberal leaders but what is predicted by keen observers in both the liberal and conservative parties is that Larkin may prove a stumbling block on which the Asquith government may come to grief, imperiling among other things, home rule for Ireland.

Jodan Redmond Alarmed.

John Redmond and his followers are stated to view the prospect with a trepidation unknown in their ranks during the height of the Carson campaign in Ulster. Even more serious in their prospects are the possibilities opening up of the complete disintergration of the liberal party by the withdrawal of the labor vote. Larkin's boast of setting England afame may sound unbelievable but assurance is given by competent authority in labor conditions there, such as point to a realization of that boast. Labor, it is declared, is ripe for revolt against trade union executives and particularly parliamentary representatives. Whether the statement is correct or not there has been a significant change within the last two weeks, during which Larkin has been imprisoned in the attitude of English trade union executives toward the Dublin strike. Proposals of sympathetic strikes in England were made if Larkin was sentenced and vetoed by British labor representatives, who went to Dublin to inquire into conditions there. Disapprobation at this imprisonment aroused among the working classes throughout the country, are making trade union executive reconsider their veto and they are now approaching the Dublin employers and are about to be brought to terms by other means a sympathetic strike of English transport workers may ensue. The temper of the men in any case is declared to be such that the executives hands must be forced.

For the present, however, the possibility of an extended sympathetic strike movement may be left out of consideration as the most immediate political consequences of the Larkin episode dealt with.

Unionists in High Feather.

Unionists are in high feather over the declaration of the Asquith government; first in countenancing the prosecution of Larkin under a mediaval statute; second, in rescinding the sentence only after Lloyd George had incautiously declared in a public speech that it had cost the liberal party a seat in Reading.

Never however have the unionist lower run so high for many years past Bonar Law, who was pessimistic a few weeks ago, yesterday beamed with optimism. The tide, he said had turned in the flood and it would soon sweep the liberals out of power.

On the other hand, well informed liberals admit that a new situation has been created and that combined with the latest opposition to home rule and parliamentary failure of Lloyd George's still more nebulous scheme of land reform to attract the electorate and the dissatisfaction of the workingof the Insurance act and Larkins appearance in the political arena, and labors indignant disapproval of the government's action in his case may cause the electoral pendulum to swing high on the unionist side.

THREE KILLED, FOURTEEN HURT

Pittsfield, Mass., Nov. 15.—Three workmen of a construction gang were killed and 14 others injured, one seriously, in a collision between a work train and a spare engine on the tracks of the Boston and Albany railway at Pittsfield Junction tonight. The victims were mostly Italians and their names were not available.

COTTON SHIP ON FIRE.

Savannah, Ga., Nov. 15.—The British steamer "Ulidia," Captain McCoy, from here, clearing yesterday for Rotterdam with a cargo of cotton and merchandise, put back to port this morning on account of fire.

EDMONTON TRADES AND LABOR COUNCIL.

DISCONTENT OVER SUPENSION OF TWO ERRING BROKERS

Many Resignations Will Take Place on London Stock Exchange.

PUNISHMENT OF HEYBURN AND CROFT DISAPPROVED

Unrest is Increased by Bad Business During Past Year —Rival Institution Improbable.

London, Nov. 15—It was lately rumored that many resignations will take place on the London stock exchange, owing to the widespread disapproval among the members over the committee sentence, suspending the senior partners of a big firm of jobbers, Heyburn and Croft for five years for alleged irregularities in the early dealings in American Marconi shares. These reports, however are not taken seriously in London as they are probably borrowed from statements that Heyburn and Croft intend setting up an independent financial agency business, which was interpreted as a threat to establish an unofficial stock exchange on the lines of the New York consolidated exchange.

This discontent is increased by the bad business of the stock exchange this year, which many attribute to certain regulations and a fixed scale of commissions, but the present improvement in the markets has accentuated the improbability of many members, if any, taking the step of starting an opposition institution.

Nevertheless the members distike of the Heyburn and Croft's sentence is very sincere, as the firm is considered to have been made the scapegoat in an affair with political complications.

The only definite charge formulated against them, was that prior to starting the market, they had accepted buying orders from brokers executed at the opening prices.

With these orders in pocket, they proceeded to distribute certificates or shares privately at moderate premiums, and only opened the market to the public at a big price of 3.1-4 for one point shares.

State Owned Cable Would Not Pay From Commercial Aspect

British Post Office Department is Tied Up With Contract to One of the Companies Until 1920—Cost Reduced Fifty Per Cent. by Codes.

London, Nov. 15—In his evidence before the dominion royal commission, second secretary of the post office, Edward Crabb, C.B., submitted a statement on behalf of the postal department, declaring plainly that a state-owned Atlantic cable was not necessary and would not pay. His views, he said, were put forward on a purely commercial aspect.

Would Not Pay.

In the course of his statement, Mr. Crabb said that, on the commercial aspect of the suggestion, the post office department has little to add to the memorandum which the colonial office forwarded to the commission in May. It was pointed out that under existing circumstances the Pacific cable traffic to and from Australia would not bring to a state-owned Atlantic cable a revenue of more than £30,000 a year, against an annual estimated cost of £50,000. It was further explained that it would not be expected that the Australian traffic would be supplemented by an adequate amount of North American traffic, since, on the one hand, the post office is bound until 1920 to give to one of the cable companies all telegrams to North America which bear no indication of route, and further, is bound not to invite the sender to specify the route; while, on the other hand, there is not in either Canada or United States a system of land telegraphs of adequate completeness which is independent of the cable companies.

No Expert Opinion.

"As regards the advantage of a state-owned Atlantic cable," said Mr. Crabb, "it is obvious that reductions in the rates are easier to arrange where the whole route is under one control. The probable amount by which the traffic would increase under the stimulus of any given reduction can, however, only be estimated with any degree of confidence, if at all, by those familiar with the particular class of traffic involved. The bulk of the extra European cable traffic does not pass through the post office, and the post office is not in position to offer an expert opinion as to the effect of reduction of the Atlantic rate for Australian traffic.

"On the question of revenue to be derived by a state-owned cable, from such traffic, it can only be pointed out that the deficit on a state-owned cable would be about £20,000 a year, if it carried the present Pacific traffic at existing rates. There is no satisfactory evidence that reduction would result in such an expansion of traffic as would increase the net revenue. As regards efficiency, the existing service is admittedly a good one. In these circumstances the post office is forced to the conclusion that, from the commercial view, provision for a state-owned cable is not at present justified."

Codes Reduce Cost.

Mr. Crabb went on to point to the development in telegraph codes which had resulted in a reduction in the cost even if the rate remained the same. Combination codes had resulted in a reduction of 50 per cent. He did not think that the rate on deferred messages and cable letter would be altered for some time.

The chairman asked what arrangements there were for subsidizing the West Indies cable service. Mr. Crabb replied that subsidy was conditional, and a reduction in the rates between the West Indies on the one side and Canada and other British possessions on the other. The arrangement was made primarily at the instance of Canada generally involved an infringement of the post office principle, that no subsidy should be given for securing a reduction in the cable rates.

"Do you anticipate any further reduction in the cable rates independent of what might be brought about by the competition of a state-owned cable?" asked the chairman.

Reduced Rates.

"Some reduction has lately been secured, but there is no present prospect for a further reduction," replied Mr. Crabb.

"If delayed, week-end messages were further reduced in price six pence per word would there not be a great increase in business?"

"That is rather a question for the Pacific cable board, but the post office has no rooted objection to such operation."

"What is your view of the results of deferred messages and cable letters?"

"They meet a great want and traffic in them has developed very satisfactorily."

Mr. Campbell, of Australia, inquired whether the subsidizing of the cables would not be compensated for by their additional usefulness to the public. Mr. Crabb answered that people who used the cables would benefit, but to give them that advantage at the cost of the general public would not be fair. As for a state-owned cable, one of its effects would probably be the withdrawal of reduced rates now granted.

Would Develop Traffic.

"Do you think that a further abatement in the cable rates would develop traffic more in the cases of Australia and New Zealand than in the cases of the United States and Canada, seeing that a reply to a letter between England and Australia is not received until two months have passed, while 12 days are enough between the two sides of the Atlantic?" asked Mr. Campbell.

"I think that would probably be the case," replied Mr. Crabb.

Replying to Commissioner Tatlow, Mr. Crabb said that, in every respect the present time was inopportune for the establishment of a state-owned cable. For example, wireless telegraphy was developing by leaps and bounds, and nobody knew what effect it would have on submarine telegraphy.

"In case of a national emergency, would the British government be entitled to seize the 13 Atlantic cables which start in the United Kingdom and land in Newfoundland and Canadian territory?" asked Commissioner Lorimer.

"I should think that power would be inherent in our right of self-defense," was the answer.

Would Lose Revenue.

Sir Henry Primrose, chairman of the Pacific cable board, the next witness, denied that further reductions to and from Australia could be made without loss of revenue. The press had been spending £18,000 a year on cable messages, but in 1910 they only spent £14,000, the number of words telegraphed having remained practically unchanged. But in 1912 and 1913 the number of the press words sent by Australia cables more than doubled," interposed the chairman. The witness agreed, but added, that this gross was due to other causes than the decrease in the price of press messages. New papers, for example, had been started in Australia. As a matter of fact, the cable had never been self-sustaining.

"But when Australia and New Zealand joined in a guarantee for a Pacific cable was not their motive, a desire for cheaper rates?" asked the chairman.

"Undoubtedly, and the Pacific cable has had that effect."

"I gather that you do not see your way to granting further facilities?"

"Not at present; we cannot afford it."

"As for the suggestion state-owned cable across the Atlantic, it is not wanted commercially, and would not pay," added Mr. Henry.

TOLLERTON HAS BRIGHT FUTURE AHEAD OF HER

Passenger Service to Edmonton Within a Very Short Time Now.

WILL BE FIRST DIVISION WEST OF EDMONTON

Station Roundhouse and Coal Shutes Now in Course of Erection.

Tollerton, the first divisional point on the Canadian Northern to the west of Edmonton, is evidently on the eve of taking its place in the ranks of Alberta's big towns.

One hundred men are at present at work on the railroad station, while the round-house and coal-chutes are rapidly nearing completion. Within a few short time the C.N.R. is expected to institute a passenger service between Edmonton and Tollerton.

With such activities and expectations real estate in and around Tollerton is already tempting both the investor and the speculator, while in the spring of next year it will be very surprising to the present inhabitants if Tollerton is not the scene of a real boom.

One of the most important edifices at present being constructed is that of A. Eland, J.P., and W. H. Shambrook, who are erecting a large office building on the main street.

As far as the natural situation of Tollerton is concerned it has everything in its favor, being situated on the McLeod river and close to a large lake, lying just east of the town. This lake is expected to furnish the new divisional point with a copious and excellent supply of water.

LORD HALDANE GIVES ADVICE TO HOPELESS LOVERS

Only Way of Avoiding Depression is by Acquiring Large Outlook.

London, Nov. 15.—Viscount Haldane, lord high chancellor, addressing the undergraduates of Edinburgh University yesterday, gave them advice on how to behave when depressed under the influence of hopeless love. In the course of his address on the "conduct of life," Lord Haldane, who is a bachelor, said: "We are subject to sorts of reverses, great and small. There is only one way of providing against depression, and that is by acquiring a large outlook.

"An undergraduate may be unsuccessful in an examination or in debate, or—let us not overlook this possibility —hopeless love affair, or he may suffer from the depression which is deepest of all, because it arises from no external cause. If he would escape the consequent sense of despair he must visualize his feelings and keep them in relief by searching out the grounds.

"He must aim at the largest and widest idea of life and devote his highest energies to attaining it. It may come to some in form of Christianity, to others in the form of another religion, to others in philosophy, to others art, but to all it is attainable if the searcher strives hard enough, according to his intellect and moral temperament."

LONDON BECOMING A GAYER CITY

Nearly Six Hundred Licenses for Places of Entertainment Applied For.

London, Nov. 15.—It would seem that London is becoming a gayer city from the list of applications for music, dancing and stage play licenses which the London County council will deal with at the annual licensing meeting. The applications reach nearly 600, including that there is one license for every 7,500 persons. Moving pictures have, of course, made the figures so large. More suburban theatres, however, are applying for music hall licenses, showing that something with more variety than the ordinary legitimate performance is required to compete with the "movies." There are also many applications for music and dancing licenses for West End hotels and restaurants, where the tango teas and rag time concerts are still in favor.

Toronto is growing up and the securing of a comprehensive traction system will help it to keep growing.

Neuralgia's Burning Pain Checked—Then Cured

Stronger Proof of Cure Could Scarcely be Found Than This

WORST CASES CURED AT HOME

"To be really cured of Neuralgia is a marvel to me," writes Davidson E. Plummer, from Kingston. "During the six weeks Neuralgia held me in its grip I suffered agony. When I had used almost every remedy, hope fairly died within me. Twice every day the attacks would recur. Had the pain been persistent I could not have borne it. I was away out in Alberta when the attack came, and was probably not robust enough for the conditions of life in that new country. I just had to suffer, as nothing seemed to subdue that awful burning pain. But relief was coming all the same, coming thousands of miles, for some new people came in from the Maritime Provinces and they brought with them a number of the Catarrhozone Company's medicines, among which was a dozen bottles of Nerviline. Hearing of my sad plight, they sent me two bottles. At first the effect of Nerviline seemed to fluctuate. Hope would rise, then followed despair, but within twenty-four hours Nerviline's victory was assured. The first bottle cured, and I am still well. The second bottle I have also used for colds, earache, toothache, sick headache and other internal disorders. I will never be without Nerviline again."

No home is either safe or complete without Nerviline. Family size bottles, 50c.; trial size, 25c., at all storekeepers and druggists, or The Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

OUR BOY SCOUTS

By Scoutmaster Effenberger.

A SCOUTMASTER'S RECRUIT.

Jack smiled. "You're not the only person in this little town to whom the internal combustion engine is no mystery."

"Of course not," I retorted; "but I never knew you taught scouts that sort of thing."

"That's exactly what I expected you to say, and it's exactly what the average man in the street would say. Perhaps you will be surprised to hear that the are about 50 different subjects for which proficiency badges are given. In fact, there is scarcely a single walk in life for which a scout cannot be prepared."

"By proficiency badges you mean those circular adornments that the boys wear on their right arm?" I asked.

"That's right, but before they can claim the right to wear them they have to be examined in each subject by a board of two or more disinterested scoutmasters or experts, so you see they don't get their badges for nothing."

"And what becomes of these badges when the boy leaves the troop?"

"My dear man," he cried, "you've got more sense than I credited you with. That's exactly my worry. The badges sink into oblivion and become of no practical value at all. And, except in a few cases, the boy gets no advantage over the ignorant lads who have never been scouts. Of course, the knowledge he has gained stands him in good stead, but he usually has to give a practical demonstration of it before it is realized by his employer, which he doesn't always get a chance of doing. Anyhow, I think there ought to be some method of turning his knowledge to more practical use than it is at present put to."

"That sounds reasonable enough," I replied, "But how would you propose to carry it into practice?"

"Nothing simpler; let the boy be re-examined before he leaves the troop in any one subject, with a view to his obtaining a certificate of proficiency, which will be recognized by all employers."

"You're rather ambitious for your scouts, aren't you?" I enquired.

"To the man who knows nothing about scouting," Jack replied, "I suppose my ideals would seem to be a bit that way, but, after all, if a boy gives up his leisure to improving his knowledge—to say nothing of the discipline and character education he receives in the troop—surely he deserves some recognition or reward for so doing."

"That goes without question, but how is one to be certain of keeping up the standard of proficiency?"

"By not putting it too high. I am not proposing to offer the employers anything but a thoroughly qualified boy (which I admit is somewhat of a rara avis in these times), who has a sound knowledge of the rudiments of the trade he wishes to follow."

I nodded, I was beginning to be interested.

"But how do you expect to get these certificates recognized by the employers?" I asked.

"Oh, I don't expect any very great difficulty in that. The scout movement is quite sufficiently well organized to cope with the matter if it ever cared to do so."

"And you think that employers would sooner employ a boy who has been a scout than any other boy?"

Jack regarded me in amazement for a moment.

"Is the scout training to go for nothing, the discipline and the good turns, the general atmosphere that associates a properly run troop—does all that have no effect upon the boy in after life? Add some common technical knowledge and reasoning, tell me, isn't he worth more to any employer than the boy that has spent his time in the back street corners, smoking cigarettes and making a general nuisance of himself?"

"I want you to come up to parade this evening and give my young mechanics some practical demonstration of repairing a motor. Will you come?"

I hesitated for a moment, and was lost, when he saw in the scout's headquarters a half-past six?" said Jack, and without waiting for me to answer, he chucked me the evening paper and disappeared.

The scouts of Dr. McQueen's Own Troop had been busily contemplating ways and means for the holding of a grand concert during the coming holiday season. That it would materialize and be a success there is no doubt whatever, as the scouts of this troop have the reputation of successfully carrying through whatever they undertake.

A hearty invitation is extended by this troop to any boy who is not already connected with any other troop to come and join this troop. If any boy is anxious to improve his time, this, then, is his chance.

ROBERTSON TROOP.

Robertson troop has been very busy in preparing to carry out their threat of being the "best troop in the city." The troop has been divided into two sections, the junior and senior; they have now one junior patrol and two senior patrols. They expect to be in their new quarters soon, in the Robertson church, when there will be "something doing," as one of their number states. The financial condition of this troop is good, they have just about paid for a baseball outfit and purchased a number of forms of amusement for the winter season and still have a comfortable sum on hand. The latest activities is the preparation for a stout library and the organizing of a hockey team.

REORGANIZATION

At a meeting held in Westminster church, last Monday evening, it was decided to re-organize the local association and a committee was appointed consisting of scoutmasters Earl, Baker and Bainbridger on the purpose of amending and getting under way the new association. It has long been felt necessary to take this step if the scout work was to succeed in this district and as there are something like nine or 10 troops in the city it can be easily understood that a good central organization is an absolute necessity.

It is hoped to make arrangements that will make it possible to have the provincial secretary J. J. Baxtarr of Calgary present at the meeting.

HOLY TRINITY TROOP

This troop meets on Thursday evenings at 7.30, in the basement of the new church. An interesting program has been arranged for the winter chief of which are the Electrical and wireless classes, special instruction in these is given at 250 Saskatchewan Drive, Strathcona.

ESSAY CONTROL

Last Monday evening Scoutmaster Earl of Westminster troop took his troop to the Royal Picture show on an observation trip and told them to write an essay on the evening's outing to be handed in to the scoutmaster of the Daily Capital, the editor of these columns has met with considerable difficulty in deciding which was the best essay to be published in this paper, owing it to R. S. King. The following is a copy of the essay:

"On November 3rd we met at the scout hall at 6.30 p.m. we then decided to take an observation picture, so called it. We started at the corner of Sutherland and Queen's avenue, from there we went east to Namayo avenue, south along Namayo to Morris street then west to Fraser avenue, from there we went south to Isabella long Isabella to Namayo south on Namayo to the Royal moving picture show.

The pictures were fine and I enjoyed them very much. We saw one good picture. The Shipwreck.

It was about a millionaire's family which went on a voyage. When they were well out to sea the ship sprung a leak but they got out in time. A fuse of powder which got wet so it never had lit. Not long after that they sighted a ship to which they signaled it coming to take them off and rescue them.

We then marched to the scout-room where we were dismissed at 9.30 p. m. The conduct of some of the boys was not very good but I hope it will be better next time.

Ten Points of Scout Law

One of the 10 points of the scout law is that each boy must do a good turn to the "other fellow" at least once a day. The latest good turn of any size which has come under our notice was that of the Milton, Ont. boy scouts who advertised a week ahead of time that on a certain day they would do messages or do any chores for the people of the town who had no boys of their own, for nothing. This is perhaps the best way of persuading people of the good work which the movement is doing. People are always more convinced by results than by arguments, and the above boys by having one of the most convincing good turns we have heard of for some time.

This, however, is only one of many similar acts which scouts have performed in fulfilment of the law and the writer calls to mind a case where a boy of his own troop on a particularly unpleasant night walked across the city to return a book which he had borrowed, simply because he had promised on his scout's honor to do so. Many cases of these kind acts are well known to the workers in this movement.

Another case is one in which a scout who had forgotten his good turn for the day and who was at camp with his troop not a hundred miles from Calgary got up on cold night last August slept on the cold ground without either blankets or a pillow of any kind, so that one of his younger companions, a delicate boy, might be able to keep warm. Needless to say, the above good turn was without the scoutmaster's consent. Those who have tried sleeping on the ground with only a rubber sheet and a pair of blankets in a period of cold weather in August will realize the extent of the sacrifice.

PETITION FOR DETECTIVES

Moose Jaw, Nov. 15.—Forty-four of the leading business men of this city have signed a petition asking that the city secure the services of a good detective agency in order bring to justice the criminals who have been responsible for so much crime in the city during the past year. The city police have been unable to make but few arrests. The police commission refuses to accede to the request claiming that the local police are quite efficient and fully able to cope with whatever lawlessness exists.

Rabbit Maranville, the Braves' midget shortstop, has decided to elevate the stage for the next three months. He is doing a monologue.

RUSSIAN DYNASTY IS PASSING AWAY

Emperor's Only Son is Suffering From An Incurable Disease.

London, Nov. 15—The Russian dynasty is in imminent danger of dying out and the present Emperor Nicholas is likely to be the last of the Romanoffs to occupy the imperial throne, according to a writer in "Free Russia," a newspaper appearing here. He says:

"The young Alexis, the emperor's only son, is suffering from an incurable disease—hemophilia of the bones. It is said—and can only be kept alive a few months longer. The emperor himself has become the victim of fits of melancholy. His consort, the unfortunate empress, is still suffering acutely from a complete nervous breakdown. The question arises, therefore, who will be the heir to Nicholas II., or will he be the last of the autocrats of Russia? The daughters of Nicholas cannot ascend the throne because Paul I., who hated his maternal mother, Catherine the Great, made a law whereby it became impossible for a woman to reign in Russia. Therefore, in case of the demise of Nicholas II., the throne should fall to his brother Michael. But this is hardly possible, since he has renounced all his rights and has married morganatically a Russian lady with whom he lives very happily far from court intrigues."

The writer then discussed the Grand Dukes, but finds inseparable objections to all of them.

MAKING HAIR GROW

It appears that in all the world there has been discovered but one thing—and ONLY one—that actually stimulates the normal action the follicles and cells that nourish the hair and thereby make it grow upon bald heads. That drug is a standard article of commerce well known in the drug trade. The National Standard Dispensatory says it is a powerful stimulant to the growth of the hair. Therefore, when if you have tried a hundred kinds of hair tonics without any good, you have not proven that a hair tonic containing that drug will make your hair grow. The best way is to mix your own tonic or take it to your druggist and let him mix it for you. Here is a formula that includes the drug referred to: Bay Rum, 6 oz.; Menthol Crystals, 15 grains. Apply a few drops daily. You can get these ingredients at any drug store. If you choose you may add a drachm of your favorite perfume. Apply to the scalp with the fingers night and morning. This formula is recommended for falling hair and dandruff. It should make your hair grow. It is NOT in any sense a dye and contains no coloring matter whatever, but has a tendency to stimulate the pigment-secreting cells and thereby restore prematurely grey hair to its natural color.

KEEPS BABYS SKIN HEALTHY

Baby Eczema

Mrs. Lois McKay, Tiverton, Digby County, N.S., writes:—"My children were taken with an itching, burning skin disease and tore their flesh until it was sore and their skirts would sometimes be wet with blood. The doctor did not seem to know what ailed them, and could give no relief, so I began using Dr. Chase's Ointment.

"Wherever it was applied it did its work well, and has entirely cured them of this horrible disease. They suffered so they could not sleep at nights, and I think if it had lasted much longer I would have gone crazy from the anxiety and loss of sleep. I cannot find words to praise Dr. Chase's Ointment enough for the good it has done my children, and hope other sufferers will try it."

Curing Husbands of Drink

Are you worn out and discouraged trying to get them sober and keep them that way? Do they promise they will stop and then go out and get drunk again? Do you realize they do not deserve you and themselves because they are wilful, but because they are poisoned with alcohol and cannot resist the craving for drink. Any wife can stop drinking men who have sold husbands and sons if you will send them to the Neal Institute. The Neal Treatment is a safe, sure vegetable remedy that will remove the craving for drink in three days without use of hypodermic injections and restore your husband or son to sobriety or usefulness.

ANOTHER WHITE HOUSE WEDDING.

Washington, Nov. 15—No little interest was created in society today by the rumor that Miss Margaret Wilson, elder daughter of the president and Mrs. Wilson was engaged to Dr. Gilbert Horne, now of John Hopkins medical school, and a graduate of Williams College, class of 1909. Dr. Horne is to be a member of the wedding party to attend Mr. Francis Sayre and Miss Jessie Wilson, at their wedding, and is an old friend of both Miss Wilson and Mr. Sayre.

EIGHT FIREMEN INJURED

Binghamton, Nov. 15.—Last night eight firemen were injured while fighting the flames which broke out in the business section of the city yesterday afternoon due to a defective furnace during the fire the Thompson specialty warehouse at Courtland avenue west which swept a dozen business places. An estimate of $200,000 loss is conservative.

Eight firemen were injured.

In 1913 over 100,000 persons returned to Naples from the United States.

OUR OPINION OF THINGS

Being the Views of Girls and Boys on a Variety of Subjects.

JOHN WILLIAMS (aged 12)
Editor-in-Chief.

A NUMBER of our readers have asked us why the sea never freezes, and why shallow water freezes first. In the Book of Knowledge we have found the following reason for these funny things:

"Sea-water, like any other kind of water, can freeze, and it does freeze if the conditions are right; but there are some good reasons why the sea does not freeze nearly so easily as a pond or lake or even a river. It is not the salt in sea-water that makes the difference so much as the depth and constant motion of sea-water. Until the whole depth of the water has been cooled down it cannot begin to freeze, for, until it has all cooled, the warmer water being lighter must always come to the top. Therefore, when water is very deep it is very difficult to freeze, and thus the great depth of the sea, in many places amounting to several miles, is one of the chief reasons against its freezing.

BUT the sea is also in constant movement under the influence of tides and winds and currents. The motion of water interferes very much with its freezing, though it does not interfere nearly so much as the depth.

"But in the coldest parts of the earth's surface the sea does freeze, as we find in the records of those explorers like Nansen or Shackleton who tried to reach the North or the South Pole. The same seems to be the case on our nearly and wonderful neighbor, the planet of Mars, for we can see through our telescopes the ice or snow-caps at each of its Poles, like the ice of our own."

HALF A FUNERAL

Master Frog Played a Clever Trick on Mr. and Mrs. Mouse and Mr. Tortoise.

WHEN Mrs. White Mouse came home from the party she fell over something on the garden path and split her new white gloves right across.

Mr. White Mouse rushed out, bearing the noise, with a lighted candle off the Christmas tree in one hand and the watering-pot in the other, in case it was burglars.

And he fell over the same thing, and singed his whiskers badly, and nearly drowned his wife.

Then he sat up and asked her what she meant by it.

And she got quite annoyed, and said he ought to be ashamed of himself to talk like that.

And then they both got up to see what they had fallen over.

It was an empty jar.

"My last pot of plum jam!" squealed Mrs. Mouse. "Not even a stone left!"

"And what is this?" said Mr. Mouse sternly, picking up a dead frog by one leg.

The frog was quite stiff.

"Oh, the monster," cried Mrs. Mouse. "He's stolen all my beautiful jam."

"And swallowed the stones. That's killed him," agreed her husband.

"It certainly has," chimed in Daddy Hare, who was passing and overheard them. "Dead as door-nails he is." And he scooped him up in the big spoon, without which he never stirred, and put him in the paper tray the confectioner's boy had brought the tartlets in.

Mr. Tortoise said he would carry the body to the cemetery. "With pleasure," he added. (You can see he's really pleased.) That was because Master Frog used to play leap-frog over him without asking if he might.

Daddy Hare said he wasn't going to walk all that way at his age and carry his spoon. And they could not do without him, because there was nothing else to dig the grave with.

But Froggie wasn't dead—not he!

He let Mr. Tortoise carry him all the way to the cemetery, where he had an appointment; and he much enjoyed knowing the mourners were trotting along behind, though he could not see very much except his own legs and Daddy Hare's back.

When he reached the place he wanted to go to he leaped out, frightening Miss Duckling into a fit—and never even said "Thank you."

Daddy Hare aimed a brick at him, and his slipper flew off.

It did not hit Froggie; it fell in the pond.

Mr. Tortoise was really disgusted.

A WARM COAT

THIS coat is a completely new style for late fall and winter wear. It has the square collar effect, and a black velvet belt over a pretty black and white striped woolen garment.

WHAT THE STORM DID

It Wrecked a Vessel on the Rocks and Threw Many Tons of Coal Overboard.

HOW the wind howled! How the waves roared!

"A hard time the poor sailors will have!" said grandma.

"Look!" cried grandpa. "There's a schooner driving in now. There she goes right on the rocks!"

How they hurried to the shore—even grandma; but the winds and waves, though cruel to the ship, had been kind to the sailors, for they landed on rocks from which they all reached the shore safely.

But the poor vessel! How the waves beat her! How the winds mocked her. Soon a hole was broken in her side, and tons and tons of coal rolled out over the rocks and were washed up by waves.

Grandpa needed coal, and the captain of the vessel was glad to sell it to him very cheap. So a dray, or flat box, was brought, the coal shovelled in, and oxen hauled it up the cliffs to grandpa's cottage.

A great stuffed chair with a leg broken off was taken out of the vessel. "You may have it, if you'll mend it!" said the captain to grandpa.

You'll find grandpa sitting in that easy-chair now, perhaps, if you come to visit.

THE FLATTERER

And the King Who Set the Riddle, Which Was Very Cleverly Answered.

AN Eastern King was very fond of asking riddles of his courtiers. He often chose his officers, not because of their bravery, but on account of their supposed wisdom in solving the riddles which he propounded. On one occasion the high post of Prime Minister was vacant. The King, therefore, assembled his wise men and courtiers and addressed them thus: "Whichever of you is able in three days to ask the most difficult riddle—one which cannot be solved—shall be Prime Minister."

The courtiers retired, each one resolving to try for the prize.

On the appointed day the King and courtiers all assembled. Each courtier propounded what appeared to himself to be the most difficult riddle, but, strange to say, correct answers were given to them all. At last the King, not knowing how to choose a candidate, said: "Now I will ask a riddle of you all, and the first man who guesses the right answer shall be appointed my Prime Minister."

"Agreed," cried all the courtiers with one voice.

"Well, then," said the King, "where shall we find the wisest man on earth?"

There was an instant's pause, when one fellow, sharper than the rest, exclaimed in a loud voice, "Here!"

"Why so?" said the King.

"Well," replied the wit, "you are most certainly the wisest person on earth, for you are setting a riddle which all the other wisest men in your kingdom are vainly trying to solve and puzzling their heads over."

"A capital reply and the right solution," cried out the King, delighted with the flattering answer; "you deserve the post and shall be installed in your office to-morrow."

"Alas!" murmured his crestfallen companions as they left the hall. 'In courts, flattery is the science which bears the greatest fruits."

SOME OF OUR VISITORS

Two Dogs Come to Our School and Lie Under the Table—One Goes to Sleep.

IN our school-room there is a low table, and under it usually lie two dogs.

One is a curly-haired setter. He is trying to get an education. But it is not so easy for him. A certain chain and padlock often make him late, and some days keep him at home altogether.

Then he doesn't understand how it is that people learn, or just what it is that they are trying to do. When he sees his little mistress come up to write, he comes too, and sits down by her side, listening carefully to everything that is said.

He studies the blackboard, and always eats any chalk he finds on the floor. When she goes back to her seat, he crawls under the table again to think over, doubtless, what he has learned.

He never goes to sleep in school, unlike the old Gordon setter Jack, who lies at the other end of the table. Jack cares nothing for school. He only comes that he may be near a little white-haired boy on whom he wishes to keep one eye.

Jack saved his life long ago. The boy was skating, when suddenly the ice gave way. George screamed as he went down and Jack heard him, though he was in a house across the street.

The lady who opened the door for Jack thought he must have suddenly gone mad. He was just in time. A few moments longer in that icy water and all would have been over for little George.

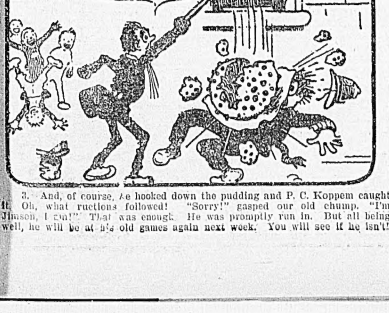

JEROLOWAN JIMSON

1. Ay, ay! here's Jimson again! "Boys," cried he, "I'm Jimson! I will proceed to show my footballatic abilities. Stand back, young half-backs! I used to play for all the leading league teams years before football was invented! I'll show some of you how to net the leather!"

2. And Jimson booted the ball through the open window, past the pudding cookie had placed on the window-sill to cool. "Never mind," cried our old friend, mistaking the pudding for the ball, "I'll soon fetch it down again for you!"

3. And, of course, he hooked down the pudding and P. C. Koppem caught it. Oh, what ructions followed! "Sorry!" gasped our old chump. "I'm Jimson, I am!" That was enough. He was promptly run in. But all being well, he will be at his old games again next week. You will see if he isn't!

PONGO AND PUSSY

PONGO said the kitten cat
Wanted to be tubbed.
Pussy mewed and fought and spat—
Pongo scrubbed and scrubbed.

Pussy went on struggling till
Over went the two;
Pongo had a horrid spill—
I am glad; aren't you!

THE BORROWED RING

LITTLE EDITH helped her mamma dress for a walk, and then said:—

"May I wear your ring with the green stone while you are out, mamma?"

"Yes," said Mrs. Balch, "if you will promise not to leave this room while you have it on."

"Oh, yes, mamma, I'll stay here all the time!" Edith put the ring on her finger, and played that she was a grown-up lady and was shaking hands with a great many people.

Then she put her hand to her face and looked in the glass to get a better view of it. Suddenly she heard a husky voice in the dining-room crying—

"Edith, Edith! where's Edith?"

"There's Ko-ko," said Edith to herself; "I must show him my ring."

She was half-way downstairs before she remembered her promise. Then she hesitated and would have gone back, but she heard Ko-ko calling her again, and she went towards the dining-room.

"I will shut my finger tight, and show him the ring, and run right upstairs again," said Edith.

Ko-ko was a large handsome parrot, and as Edith approached his cage he caught hold of the wires with his claws, and put his head between the bars that Edith might stroke it.

"See my pretty ring, Ko-ko."

Ko-ko turned his head sideways and looked at it, then he took hold of it with his beak.

"You would like to have it, dear, but you cannot; it belongs to mamma."

Ko-ko pulled and twisted with all his might; but Edith kept her finger closed firmly, and at last the parrot drew back his head and gave up the struggle. Edith looked at the ring and shrieked again and again, for in the centre was a hole and Ko-ko was calmly chewing the stone.

The maid heard her shrieks, and persuaded Ko-ko to exchange the stone for a lump of sugar. The ring was badly scratched, but Mrs. Balch was thankful that it was not broken. As for Edith, she never borrowed her mamma's rings again.

PUNISHED

TRITZ came from school first year
As learned as could be,
And wished to show to all around
How well informed was he.

He hardly spoke, this hopeful son,
Unto his parents kind;
For he was eager to display
The treasures of his mind.

And so at dinner he began:
"Papa, you think you see
Two roasted chickens in that dish;
Now I will prove them three.

"First, this is one, and that is two,
As plain as plain can be;
I add the one unto the two,
And two and one make three."

"Just so, my boy," replied Papa;
"Blessings be on your pate!
So, I take one, Mama takes one—
The third put on your plate!"

HARK! HARK!

Hark! hark! the dogs do bark;
Beggars are coming to town;
Some on nags, and some in rags,
And some in velvet gown.

THE MILKMAN

"NEW milk!" cried Tommy cheerily.
So Mrs. Pussy ran
To get some for the children's tea
From Tommy's shining can.

But he, still shouting, drove away,
And simply wouldn't stop,
Because—well, I am grieved to say
He'd drunk it every drop.

CLEVER MRS. PARTRIDGE

WALTER was walking in the woods with his father. Suddenly a partridge flew up near them, and lighted almost at their feet.

She acted very strangely, bristling up her feathers, and running first towards Walter, and then from him, but dodging so that the boy could not catch her.

When Walter walked the bird went slowly, and when he ran she would go just fast enough to keep out of his reach, and at the same time lead him on. They went in this way for some distance, when the partridge rose in the air and flew out of sight.

"Why did she act so strangely?" asked Walter, as he returned to the place where his father was standing. "I thought she must be wounded, so she could not fly; but she went fast enough when she got ready."

"This would answer your question if you knew her ways," said the father, as he showed Walter a tiny partridge which he was holding in his hand.

"Oh, where did you get that?" asked Walter, in delight as he took the little creature and gently smoothed its tiny feathers.

"I picked it up just as you started to follow the mother bird. I think there must have been a dozen of them; but they hid so quickly that I could get only this one."

"Why, I did not see any of them!" said Walter.

"No, for the old bird took your whole attention, which was just what she wanted to do. When she had called you far enough from her young, and had given them time to hide, she was ready to fly away. I had seen them act in this way so often that I knew what it meant as soon as I saw her. That was why I was able to catch this little one."

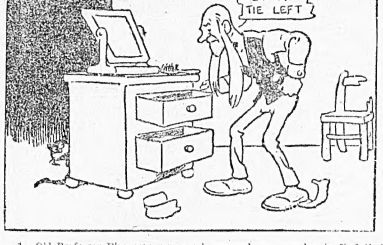

"Can I not take it home and make a cage for it?"

"No; I think you had better let it go. You could not tame it, and it would die in a few days."

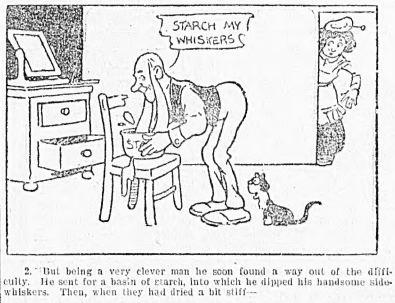

"Poor, little, scared thing! I should not like to cause its death," said Walter, as he carefully placed it on the ground.

As soon as it was released it ran into a thick clump of bushes and hid; and Walter could find neither the old bird nor any of the little ones,

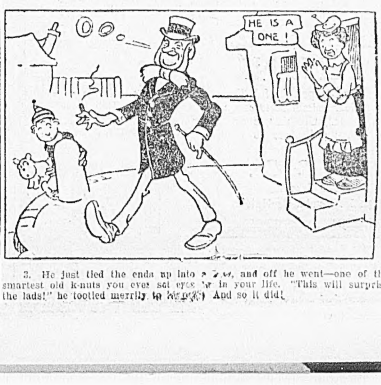

OLD PROFESSOR PIPP

1. Old Professor Pipp was very much annoyed one morning to find that all his ties had gone to the wash, and that he hadn't a solitary one left. "Extremely awkward!" he exclaimed. "I can't go to the Institute without a tie of some sort on!"

2. But being a very clever man he soon found a way out of the difficulty. He sent for a basin of starch, into which he dipped his handsome side-whiskers. Then, when they had dried a bit stiff—

3. He just tied the ends up into a bow, and off he went—one of the smartest old knuts you ever set eyes on in your life. "This will surprise the lads!" he tootled merrily to himself. And so it did.

SMOKE MORE CIGARETTES

Ottawa, Nov. 15.—An enormous increase in the consumption of cigarettes in Canada is shown by the figures compiled by the statistical branch of the inland revenue department. These figures show that during the months of July, August and September, there was smoked 619,466,180 cigarettes, which is thoroughly astonishing, average of four packages for every man, woman and child within the confines of the dominion. It is an increase of more than fifty millions over the corresponding months in 1912. The increase is believed to be the highest per capita the department has record of.

DIVORCE CASE FROM EDMONTON

Neuralgia's Burning Pain Checked—Then Cured

Stronger Proof of Cure Could Scarcely be Found Than This

WORST CASES CURED AT HOME

"To be really cured of Neuralgia is a marvel to me," writes Davidson E. Plummer, from Kingston. "During the six weeks Neuralgia held me in its grip I suffered agony. When I had used almost every remedy, hope fairly died within me. Twice every day the attacks would recur. Had the pain been persistent I could not have borne it. I was away out in Alberta when the attack came, and was probably not in robust enough for the conditions of life in that new country. I just had to suffer, as nothing seemed to subdue that awful burning pain. But relief was coming at last. It came, coming thousands of miles, for some new people came in from the Maritime Provinces and they brought with them a number of the Catarrhozone Company's medicines, among which was a dozen bottles of Nerviline. Hearing of my sad plight, they sent me two bottles. At first the effect of Nerviline seemed to flatter me. Hope would rise, then followed despair, but within twenty-four hours Nerviline's victory was assured. The first bottle cured, and I am still well. The second bottle I have also used for colds, catarrh, toothache, sick headache and other internal disorders. I will never be without Nerviline again."

No home is either safe or complete without Nerviline. Family size bottles, 50c.; trial size, 25c. at all storekeepers and druggists, or The Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

OUR BOY SCOUTS

By Scoutmaster Effenberger.

A SCOUTMASTER'S RECRUIT.

"Of course not," I retorted; "but I never knew you taught scouts that sort of thing."

"That's exactly what I expected you to say, and it's exactly what the average man in the street would say. I suppose you will be surprised to hear that the are about 50 different subjects for which proficiency badges are given, in fact, there is scarcely a single walk in life for which a scout cannot be prepared."

"By proficiency badges you mean those circular adornments that the boys wear on their right arm?" I asked.

"That's right, but before they can claim the right to wear them they have to be examined in each subject by a committee of two or more distinguished amateurs or experts, so you see they don't get their badges for nothing."

"And what becomes of these badges when the boy leaves the troop?"

"My dear man," he cried, "you've got more sense than to ask such a question. That's exactly my worry. The badges sink into oblivion and become of no practical value at all. And, moreover, in most cases, the boy gets no advantage over the ignorant lads who have never been scouts. Of course, the knowledge he has gained stands him in good stead, but he usually has to give a practical demonstration of it before it is realized by the employer which he doesn't always get a chance of doing. Anyhow, I think there ought to be some method of giving every scout who qualifies a more practical use than it is at present put to."

"That sounds reasonable enough," I replied, "But how would you propose to carry it into practice?"

"Nothing easier. Let the boy be re-examined before he leaves the troop in any one subject, with a view to his obtaining a qualifying certificate, which will be recognized by all employers."

"You're rather ambitious for your scouts, aren't you?" I suggested.

"To the man who knows nothing about scouting, Jack replied, "I suppose my plan would seem to be a bit that way; but, after all, if a boy gives up his leisure to improving his knowledge—to say nothing of the discipline and character education he receives in the troop—surely he deserves some recognition or reward for so doing."

"That goes without question. But how is one to be certain of keeping up the standard of proficiency?"

"My not putting it too high. I am not proposing to offer the employers anything but a well-educated boy (which you will admit is somewhat of a rara avis in these times), who has a sound knowledge of the rudiments of the trade he wishes to follow."

I nodded, I was beginning to be interested.

"But how do you expect to get these certificates recognized by the employers?" I asked.

"Oh, I don't expect any very great difficulty in that. The scout movement is quite sufficiently well organized to cope with the matter if it ever cared to do so."

"And you think that employers would employ a boy who has been a scout than any other boy?"

Jack regarded me in amazement for a moment.

"Is the scout training to go for nothing, the discipline and the good turns, the general atmosphere that pervades a properly run troop counts all that have no effect upon the boy in after life? Add some common sense knowledge and scouting will tell me, but he would more to any employer than the boy that has spent his time in loafing at street corners smoking cigarettes and making a general nuisance of himself?"

"I want you to come up to parade this evening and give my young mechanics some practical demonstration of repairing a motor. Will you come?"

I hesitated for a moment, and was lost. "Meet me at the scout's headquarters at half-past six?" said Jack, and without waiting for me to answer, he chucked me the evening paper and disappeared.

The scouts of Dr. McQueen's Own Troop are now seriously contemplating ways and means for the holding of a grand concert during the coming holiday season. That this will materialize and be a success there is no doubt whatever, as the scouts of this troop have the reputation of successfully carrying through whatever they undertake.

A hearty invitation is extended by this troop to any boys who are not already connected with any other troop to come and join this troop. If any boy is anxious to improve his time, this, then, is his chance.

ROBERTSON TROOP.

Robertson troop has been very busy in preparing to carry out their threat of being the "best troop in the city." The troop has been divided into two sections, the junior and senior; they have now one junior patrol and two senior patrols. They expect to be in their new quarters soon, in the new church, when there will be something doing as one of their number states. The financial condition of this troop is good, and they have bought and paid for a baseball outfit and purchased a number of forms of amusement for the winter evenings and still have a surplus on hand. Their headquarters is the reception room of a stout library and the organizing of a hockey team.

REORGANIZATION

At a meeting held in Westminster church, last Monday evening, it was decided to re-organize the Rural association and a committee was appointed consisting of scoutmasters Earl, Baker and Effenberger for the purpose of arranging and getting up a meeting of disinterested scouters. It has long been felt necessary to take this step if the scout work was to succeed in this city and as there are something like 16 troops in the city it can be easily understood that a good central organization is an absolute necessity.

It is hoped to make arrangements that will make it possible to have the provincial secretary J. J. Baxtarr of Calgary present at this meeting.

HOLY TRINITY TROOP

This troop meets on Thursday evenings at 7.30, in the basement of the new church. An interesting program has been arranged for the winter months of which are the Electrical and wireless classes, special instruction in these is given at 289 Saskatchewan Drive, Strathcona.

ESSAY CONTROL

Last Monday evening Scoutmaster Earl of Westminster troop took his troop to the Dreamland theatre, where on an observation trip and told them to write an essay on the evening's outing the best essay to be published in the Daily Herald, the editor of these columns has met with considerable difficulty in deciding which was the best but has come to a decision giving it to Jack Bailey. The following is a copy of the essay:

"On November 3rd we met at the scout hall at 7.30 p. m. we then decided to go on an observation trip as we called it. We started at the corner of Sutherland and Queen's avenue, from there we went east to Namayo avenue, south on Namayo to Morris street, from west on Gladstone road from there we went south to Isabella long Isabella to Namayo south on Namayo to the Royal moving picture show.

The pictures were fine and I enjoyed them very much. We saw one picture, "The Shipwreck." It was about a millionaire's family which went on a voyage. When they were well out to sea the ship sprung a leak which could not be fixed so they took to the life-boats and left her. The millionaire's family all got into one boat. After two days when everybody in the boat was tired and weary they drifted to an island and found a mud-turtle which they cooked over a fire. They were attacked by some natives but they dove them off by a line of powder which one of them had lit. Not long after that they sighted a ship to which they signaled it coming to take them off and rescue them.

We then marched to the scout-room where we were dismissed at 9.30 p. m. The conduct of some of the boys was not very good but I hope it will be better next time.

Ten Points of Scout Law

One of the 10 points of the scout law is that each boy must do a good turn to the "other fellow" at least once a day. The latest good turn of any size which has come under our notice was that of the Millen, Ont. boy scouts who advertised a week ahead of time that on a certain day they would run messages or do chores for the people of the town who had no boys of their own, for nothing. This is perhaps the best way of persuading people of the good work which the movement is doing. People are always more convinced by results than by arguments, and the above is perhaps one of the most convincing good turns we have heard of for some time.

This, however, is only one of many similar acts which scouts have performed in fulfilment of the law and the writer calls to mind a case where a boy of his own troop on a particularly unpleasant night walked across the city to return a book which he had borrowed, simply because he had promised on his scout's honor to do so. Many cases of these kind acts are well known to the workers in this movement. Another case in one in which a scout who had forcotten his good turn for the day and who was at camp with his troop not a hundred night last August slept on a cold night last August without either blankets or a pillow of any kind, so that one of his younger companions, a delicate boy, might be able to keep warm. Needless to say, the above good turn was without the scoutmaster's consent. Those who have tried sleeping on the ground with only a rubber sheet and a pair of blankets in a period of cold weather in August will realize the extent of the sacrifice.

PETITION FOR DETECTIVES

Moose Jaw, Nov. 15.—Forty-four of the leading business men of this city have signed a petition asking that the city secure the services of a good detective agency in order bring to justice the criminals who have been responsible for so much crime in the city during the past year. The city police have been unable to make but few arrests. The police commission refuses to accede to the request claiming that the local police are quite efficient and fully able to cope with whatever lawlessness exists.

RUSSIAN DYNASTY IS PASSING AWAY

Emperor's Only Son is Suffering From An Incurable Disease.

London, Nov. 15—The Russian dynasty is in imminent danger of dying out and the present Emperor Nicholas is likely to be the last of the Romanoffs to occupy the Imperial throne, according to a writer in "Pres Russia," a newspaper appearing here. He says:

"The young Alexis, the emperor's only son, is suffering from an incurable disease—tuberculosis of the bones. He will be the last of the line of autocrats of Russia? The daughters of Nicholas cannot ascend the throne because Paul I, who hated his august mother, Catherine the Great, made a law whereby it became impossible for a woman to reign in Russia. Therefore, in case of the demise of Nicholas II, the throne will fall to his brother Michael. But this is hardly possible, since he has renounced all his rights and has married morganatically a Russian lady with whom he is very happily living from court intrigues."

The writer then discussed the Grand Dukes, but finds insuperable objections to all of them.

MAKING HAIR GROW

It appears that in all the world there has been discovered one drug—and ONLY one—that actually stimulates to normal action the follicles and cells that nourish the hair and thereby make it grow luxuriantly on bald heads. That drug is a standard article of commerce well known to the drug trade. The National Standard Laboratorys says it acts as a powerful stimulant to the growth of the hair. Therefore, even if you have tried a hundred kinds of hair drug you know to be useless, you have not proven that a hair tonic containing cantharides will not make your hair grow. The best way is to make it yourself at home for a reliable druggist has it for you. Here is the formula: Cantharides tincture, one ounce; Bay Rum, 6 oz.; Menthol Crystals, 60 drachms; Lavoris de Composor, 2 ozs. You can get these ingredients at any drug store. Tell you choose you may add a drachm of your favorite perfume. Apply to the scalp with the fingers night and morning. This formula is recommended for falling hair and dandruff. It should make your hair grow. It is NOT in any sense a dye and contains no coloring matter whatever but has a tendency to stimulate the pigment-secreting cells and thereby restore prematurely grey hair to its natural color.

KEEPS BABYS SKIN HEALTHY

Baby Eczema

Mrs. Lois McKay, Tiverton, Digby County, N.S., writes:—"My children were taken with an itching, burning skin disease and tore their flesh until it was sore and their skirts would sometimes be wet with blood. The doctor did not seem to know what ailed them, and could give no relief, so I began using Dr. Chase's Ointment.

"Wherever it was applied it did its work well, and has entirely cured them of this horrible disease. They suffered so they could not sleep at nights, and I think if it had lasted much longer I would have gone crazy from the anxiety and loss of sleep. I cannot find words to praise Dr. Chase's Ointment enough for the good it has done my children, and hope other sufferers will try it."

Dr. Chase's Ointment is a necessity in any home where there are children. By curing irritation and chafing it prevents torturing skin disease. 60 cents a box, all dealers. Sample box mailed free, if you mention this paper. Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

ANOTHER WHITE HOUSE WEDDING.

Washington, Nov. 15—No little interest was created in society today by the runner that Miss Margaret Wilson, elder daughter of the president and Mrs. Wilson was engaged to Dr. Gilbert Horax, now of John Hopkins Medical school, and a graduate of Williams College, class of 1909. Dr. Horax is to be a member of the wedding party to attend Mr. Francis Sayre and William Sayre, Wilson, at their wedding and is an old friend of both Miss Wilson and Mr. Sayre.

EIGHT FIREMEN INJURED

Binghamton, Nov. 15.—Last night eight firemen were injured while fighting the flames which broke out in the business section of the city yesterday afternoon due to a defective furnace chimney in the Thompson specialty warehouse at Conklin avenue west which swept a dozen business places. An estimate of $200,000 loss is conservative.

OUR OPINION OF THINGS

Being the Views of Girls and Boys on a Variety of Subjects.

JOHN WILLIAMS (aged 12)
Editor-in-Chief.

A NUMBER of our readers have asked us why the sea never freezes, and why shallow water freezes first. In the Book of Knowledge we have found the following reason for these funny things:

"Sea-water, like any other kind of water, can freeze, and it does freeze if the conditions are right; but there are some good reasons why the sea does not freeze nearly so easily as a pond or lake or even a river. It is not the salt in sea-water that makes the difference so much as the depth and constant motion of sea-water. Until the whole depth of the water has been cooled down it cannot begin to freeze, for, until it has all cooled, the warmer water being lighter must always come to the top. Therefore, when water is very deep it is very difficult to freeze, and thus the great depth of the sea, in many places amounting to several miles, is one of the chief reasons against its freezing.

BUT the sea is also in constant movement under the influence of tides and winds and currents. The motion of water interferes very much with its freezing, though it does not interfere nearly so much as the depth.

"But in the coldest parts of the earth's surface the sea does freeze, as we find in the records of those explorers like Nansen or Shackleton who tried to reach the North or the South Pole. The same seems to be the case on our nearly and wonderful neighbor, the planet of Mars, for we can see through our telescopes the ice or snow-caps at each of its Poles, like the ice at our own."

HALF A FUNERAL

Master Frog Played a Clever Trick on Mr. and Mrs. Mouse and Mr. Tortoise.

WHEN Mrs. White Mouse came home from the party she fell over something on the garden path and split her new white gloves right across.

Mr. White Mouse rushed out, hearing the noise, with a lighted candle off the Christmas tree in one hand and the watering-pot in the other, in case it was burglars.

And he fell over the same thing, and singed his whiskers badly, and nearly drowned his wife.

Then he sat up and asked her what she meant by it.

And she got quite annoyed, and said he ought to be ashamed of himself to talk like that.

And then they both got up to see what they had fallen over.

It was an empty jar.

"My last pot of plum jam!" squealed Mrs. Mouse. "Not even a stone left!"

"And what is this?" said Mr. Mouse sternly, picking up a dead frog by one leg.

The frog was quite stiff.

"Oh, the monster," cried Mrs. Mouse. "He's stolen all my beautiful jam."

"And swallowed the stones. That's killed him," agreed her husband.

"It certainly has," chimed in Daddy Hare, who was passing and overheard them. "Dead as door-nails he is." And he scooped him up in the big spoon, without which he never stirred, and put him in the paper tray the confectioner's boy had brought the tartlets in.

Mr. Tortoise said he would carry the body to the cemetery. "With pleasure," he added. (You can see he's really pleased.) That was because Master Frog used to play leap-frog over him without asking if he might.

Daddy Hare said he wasn't going to walk all that way at his age and carry his spoon. And they could not do without him, because there was nothing else to dig the grave with.

But Froggie wasn't dead—not he!

He let Mr. Tortoise carry him all the way to the cemetery, where he had an appointment; and he much enjoyed knowing the mourners were trotting along behind, though he could not see very much except his own legs and Daddy Hare's back.

When he reached the place he wanted to go to he leaped out, frightening Miss Duckling into a fit—and never even said "Thank you."

Daddy Hare aimed a brick at him, and his slipper flew off.

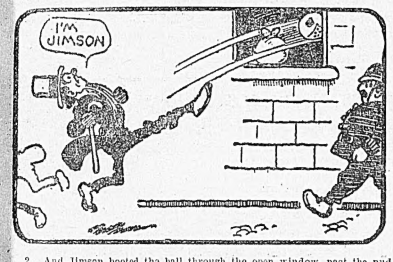

It did not hit Froggie; it fell in the pond.

Mr. Tortoise was really disgusted.

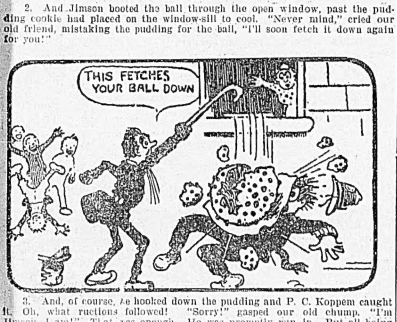

JEROLOWAN JIMSON

1. Ay, ay! here's Jimson again! "Boys," cried he, "I'm Jimson! I will proceed to show my footballastic abilities. Stand back, young half-backs! I used to play for all the leading league teams years before football was invented! I'll show some of you how to net the leather!"

2. And Jimson booted the ball through the open window, past the pudding cookie had placed on the window-sill to cool. "Never mind," cried our old friend, mistaking the pudding for the ball, "I'll soon fetch it down again for you!"

3. And, of course, he hooked down the pudding and P. C. Koppem caught it. Oh, what ructions followed! "Sorry!" gasped our old chump. "I'm Jimson, I am!" That was enough. He was promptly run in. But all being well, he will be at it's old games again next week. You will see if he isn't!

PONGO AND PUSSY

PONGO said the kitten cat
Wanted to be tubbed.
Pussy mewed and fought and spat—
Pongo scrubbed and scrubbed.

Pussy went on struggling till
Over went the two;
Pongo had a horrid spill—
I am glad; aren't you!

THE BORROWED RING

LITTLE EDITH helped her mamma dress for a walk, and then said:—

"May I wear your ring with the green stone while you are out, mamma?"

"Yes," said Mrs. Balch, "if you will promise not to leave this room while you have it on."

"Oh, yes, mamma, I'll stay here all the time!" Edith put the ring on her finger, and played that she was a grown-up lady and was shaking hands with a great many people.

Then she put her hand to her face and looked in the glass to get a better view of it. Suddenly she heard a husky voice in the dining-room crying—

"Edith, Edith! where's Edith?"

"There's Ko-ko," said Edith to herself; "I must show him my ring."

She was half-way downstairs before she remembered her promise. Then she hesitated and would have gone back, but she heard Ko-ko calling her again, and she went towards the dining-room.

"I will shut my finger tight, and show him the ring, and run right upstairs again," said Edith.

Ko-ko was a large handsome parrot, and as Edith approached his cage he caught hold of the wires with his claws, and put his head between the bars that Edith might stroke it.

"See my pretty ring, Ko-ko."

Ko-ko turned his head sideways and looked at it, then he took hold of it with his beak.

"You would like to have it, dear, but you cannot; it belongs to mamma."

Ko-ko pulled and twisted with all his might; but Edith kept her finger closed firmly, and at last the parrot drew back his head and gave up the struggle. Edith looked at the ring and shrieked again and again, for in the centre was a hole and Ko-ko was calmly chewing the stone.

The maid heard her shrieks, and persuaded Ko-ko to exchange the stone for a lump of sugar. The ring was badly scratched, but Mrs. Balch was thankful that it was not broken. As for Edith, she never borrowed her mamma's rings again.

THIS coat is a completely new style for late fall and winter wear. It has the square collar effect, and a black velvet belt over a pretty black and white striped woolen garment.

WHAT THE STORM DID

It Wrecked a Vessel on the Rocks and Threw Many Tons of Coal Overboard.

HOW the wind howled! How the waves roared!

"A hard time the poor sailors will have!" said grandma.

"Look!" cried grandpa. "There's a schooner driving in now. There she goes right on the rocks!"

How they hurried to the shore—even grandma; but the winds and waves, though cruel to the ship, had been kind to the sailors, for they landed on rocks from which they all reached the shore safely.

But the poor vessel! How the waves beat her! How the winds mocked her. Soon a hole was broken in her side, and tons and tons of coal rolled out over the rocks and were washed up by waves.

Grandpa needed coal, and the captain of the vessel was glad to sell it to him very cheap. So a dray, or flat box, was brought, the coal shovelled in, and oxen hauled it up the cliffs to grandpa's cottage.

A great stuffed chair with a leg broken off was taken out of the vessel. "You may have it, if you'll mend it!" said the captain to grandpa.

You'll find grandpa sitting in that easy-chair now, perhaps, if you come to visit.

As learned as could be,
And wished to show to all around
How well informed was he.

He hardly spoke, this hopeful son,
Unto his parents kind;
For he was eager to display
The treasures of his mind.

And so at dinner he began:
"Papa, you think you see
Two roasted chickens in that dish;
Now I will prove them three.

"First, this is one, and that is two,
As plain as plain can be;
I add the one unto the two,
And two and one make three."

"Just so, my boy," replied Papa;
"Blessings be on your pate!
So, I take one, Mama takes one—
The third put on your plate!"

THE FLATTERER

And the King Who Set the Riddle, Which Was Very Cleverly Answered.

AN Eastern King was very fond of asking riddles of his courtiers. He often chose his officers, not because of their bravery, but on account of their supposed wisdom in solving the riddles which he propounded. On one occasion the high post of Prime Minister was vacant. The King, therefore, assembled his wise men and courtiers and addressed them thus: "Whichever of you is able in three days to ask the most difficult riddle—one which cannot be solved—shall be Prime Minister."

The courtiers retired, each one resolving to try for the prize.

On the appointed day the King and courtiers all assembled. Each courtier propounded what appeared to himself to be the most difficult riddle, but, strange to say, correct answers were given to them all. At last the King, not knowing how to choose a candidate, said: "Now I will ask a riddle of you all, and the first man who guesses the right answer shall be appointed my Prime Minister."

"Agreed," cried all the courtiers with one voice.

"Well, then," said the King, "where shall we find the wisest man on earth?"

There was an instant's pause, when one fellow, sharper than the rest, exclaimed in a loud voice, "Here!"

"Why so?" said the King.

"Well," replied the wit, "you are most certainly the wisest person on earth, for you are setting a riddle which all the other wisest men in your kingdom are vainly trying to solve and puzzling their heads over."

"A capital reply and the right solution," cried out the King, delighted with the flattering answer; "you deserve the post and shall be installed in your office to-morrow."

"Alas!" murmured his crestfallen companions as they left the hall. "In courts, flattery is the science which bears the greatest fruits."

THE MILKMAN

NEW milk!" cried Tommy cheerily.
So Mrs. Pussy ran
To get some for the children's tea
From Tommy's shining can.

But he, still shouting, drove away,
And simply wouldn't stop.
Because—well, I am grieved to say
He'd drunk it every drop.

CLEVER MRS. PARTRIDGE

WALTER was walking in the woods with his father. Suddenly a partridge flew up near them, and lighted almost at their feet.

She acted very strangely, bristling up her feathers, and running first towards Walter, and then from him, but dodging so that the boy could not catch her.

When Walter walked the bird went slowly, and when he ran she would go just fast enough to keep out of his reach, and at the same time lead him on. They went in this way for some distance, when the partridge rose in the air and flew out of sight.

"Why did she act so strangely?" asked Walter, as he returned to the place where his father was standing. "I thought she must be wounded, so she could not fly; but she went fast enough when she got ready."

"This would answer your question if you knew her ways," said the father, as he showed Walter a tiny partridge which he was holding in his hand.

"Oh, where did you get that?" asked Walter, in delight, as he took the little creature and gently smoothed its tiny feathers.

"I picked it up just as you started to follow the mother bird. I think there must have been a dozen of them; but they hid so quickly that I could get only this one."

"Why, I did not see any of them!" said Walter.

"No, for the old bird took your whole attention, which was just what she wanted to do. When she had called you far enough from her young, and had given them time to hide, she was ready to fly away. I had seen them act in this way so often that I knew what it meant as soon as I saw her. That was why I was able to catch this little one."

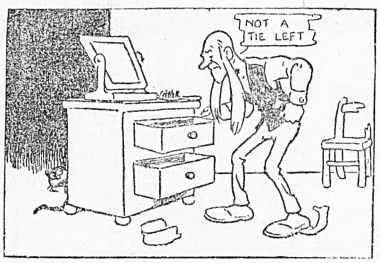

"Can I not take it home and make a cage for it?"

"No; I think you had better let it go. You could not tame it, and it would die in a few days."

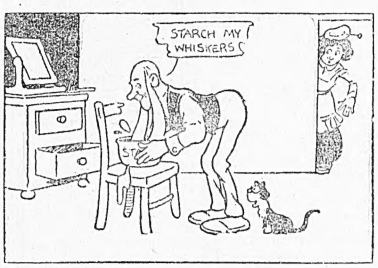

"Poor, little, scared thing! I should not like to cause its death," said Walter, as he carefully placed it on the ground.

As soon as it was released it ran into a thick clump of bushes and hid; and Walter could find neither the old bird nor any of the little ones.

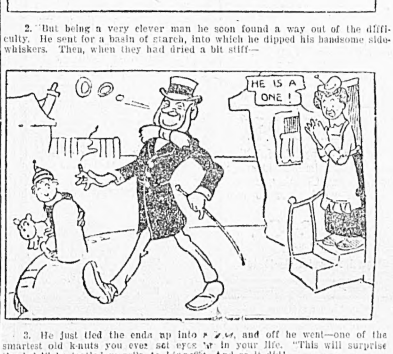

OLD PROFESSOR PIPP

1. Old Professor Pipp was very much annoyed one morning to find that all his ties had gone to the wash, and that he hadn't a solitary one left. "Extremely awkward!" he exclaimed. "I can't go to the institute without a tie of some sort on!"

2. But being a very clever man he soon found a way out of the difficulty. He went for a basin of starch, into which he dipped his handsome side-whiskers. Then, when they had dried a bit stiff—

3. He just tied the ends up into a bow, and off he went—one of the smartest old knuts you ever set eyes on in your life. "This will surprise the lads!" he tootled merrily to himself. And so it did!

SOME OF :: OUR VISITORS

Two Dogs Come to Our School and Lie Under the Table—One Goes to Sleep.

IN our school-room there is a low table, and under it usually lie two dogs.

One is a curly-haired setter. He is trying to get an education. But it is not so easy for him. A certain chain and padlock often make him late, and some days keep him at home altogether.

Then he doesn't understand how it is that people learn, or just what it is that they are trying to do. When he sees his little mistress come up to write, he comes too, and sits down by her side, listening carefully to everything that is said.

He studies the blackboard, and always eats any chalk he finds on the floor. When she goes back to her seat, he crawls under the table again to think over, doubtless, what he has learned.

He never goes to sleep in school, unlike the old Gordon setter Jack, who lies at the other end of the table. Jack cares nothing for school. He only comes that he may be near a little white-haired boy on whom he wishes to keep one eye.

Jack saved his life long ago. The boy was skating, when suddenly the ice gave way. George screamed as he went down and Jack heard him, though he was in a house across the street.

The lady who opened the door for Jack thought he must have suddenly gone mad. He was just in time. A few moments longer in that icy water and all would have been over for little George.

SUSTAINS COMPOUND FRACTURE WHILE SKATING

Mary Lanik Receives Painful Injuries at McKernan Lake Friday Afternoon.

Miss Mary Lanik, who lives on the south side, sustained a painful injury yesterday while skating on MacKernan lake. At the south side hospital it was learned that she had suffered a compound fracture of the right leg. This morning Miss Lanik was still suffering considerably from the effects of the setting.

Miss Lanik conducts a dressmaking establishment on the south side.

Y.M.C.A. NOTES.

HOCKEY FOR WORKING BOYS.

All boys' hockey teams wishing to enter in the employed boys' section of the Greater Edmonton boys' hockey league are requested to have two representatives at the Y.M.C.A. on Wednesday evening, November 19, at 7.30 o'clock.

This meeting is for boys on the south side as well as the north side. The area will be, for junior 14 and 15, and for senior 16 and 17.

As the schedule committee are anxious to get the league started right away, teams wishing to play should see that their representatives are on hand. A fee of $1 will be charged each team, and free ice will be provided. Each team should come prepared to submit the names of two adults as referees.
